NON-STOP FLYER CONTINUES PANAMA FLIGHT FROM ISLAND

Commander Bartlett Hopes To Make Journey In
Two Hops—Second Plane Is Towed
To Guantanamo

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Determined to get to Panama in two
hops if not in one, Commander
H. T. Bartlett piloted the all-metal PN-10 seaplane No. 2 out of Siguana bay, Isle of Pines, at 6:55
o'clock this morning and headed
south over the Caribbean.
Bartlett, flying the second plane
Wednesday in the navy's attempted non-stop flight from Hampton Roads to Panama, was forced
down near the Isle of Pines when
his oil supply failed. His team
mate, Lieutenant B. J. Connell,
flying plane No. 1, also was forced
to abandon the flight short of the goal, due to a broken connecting
rod.

From Siguana bay, where the
hop-off took place this morning, to Colon, the destination, is roughly 770 miles. Barring accidents, it should be an easy performance, as Bartlett has completed almost 1-200 miles of the flight when the failure of his oil supply forced him
down on Wednesday.
A destroyer will follow the
course of the plane southward
from Siguana bay this morning,
prepared to pick up Bartlett and
his companions, should misfortune overtake them.
Connell's plane No. 1 is being
towed to Guantanamo, the navy
was advised this morning. It will need a new starboard engine before again being put in service.

Distinguished Crowd To See Army and Navy
Open New Stadium

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Eighty-
seven potential generals and admirals of the United States army
and navy were in Chicago today,
prepared for what might prove to
be the toughest battle of their careers. It all depends on what success the League of Nations or
some other allied agency for preserving peace may have in preventing war.

This much is certain—no future
war will be fought with more devotion.

GOAT LIVES HIGH

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—When
the forty-six members of the
naval academy football squad
had been installed in their
rooms at the fashionable Windermere Hotel here, there was
one room and bath still vacant.
"Where is it?" asked the anxious bellhop.
Just then Coach Ingram came
down the aisle tugging at a rope. On the other end of the rope was "Bill," the long-horned
goat, mascot of the Middies.
"Bill" was assigned to the unoccupied room. He will be kept
there and treated as royally as
any member of the team.

termination than the Army-Navy
football game scheduled for Saturday's memorial stadium here tomorrow afternoon.
The eighty-seven warriors mentioned above are members of the
rival grid teams. Forty-one of them hail from the military academy at West Point and forty-six
from the naval academy at Annapolis.

The gridders, arrayed in their impressive uniforms, arrived here
yesterday. "Navy Bill" Ingram,
coach of the Middies, was in
charge of the seagoing contingent
and Biff Jones, famous mentor of
the Cadets, headed the West Point
squad.

After lunch and a brief rest,
the squads took the field for lim-bering-up exercises. Coach Jones ran his troops through a brief signal drill.
Today, 1,115 cadets and 1,940
midshipmen, accompanied by a
distinguished group of diplomats,
cabinet members and high-ranking
officers of the army and navy, will arrive to cheer for one or the other side.

This afternoon, Chicago will see
this notable gathering parade down
its principal boulevard to Soldiers'
field, where the new $8,000,000 stadium will be dedicated to the men
who lost their lives in the World War.

Vice President Dawes, Mayor
Dever, the president of the South
park board and the superintendents of the two service academies
will be outstanding figures in these ceremonies. Each will make a brief address.

Colder weather and possibly
snow was the official forecast for
the big game tomorrow. The field,
however, has been protected for
weeks with a heavy tarpaulin and,
unless the snow is unusually
heavy, it is not expected to interfere with the playing of the game.

turo R. Herrera, another student is in a hospital here, in a serious condition, as a result of an auto accident last night while returning from a dance at Schenectady.

other students in the car escaped uninjured. The car skidded and

RUMOR ROUMANIA APPROACHES CIVIL WAR; KING MAY BE DEAD

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—There is strong belief in Belgrade that Roumania is on the eve of civil
war, says a dispatch from Belgrade
to the Vossische Zeitung today.
The dispatch says that the fact
that all telephone connections with Bucharest have been cut since
three days ago strengthens this belief.
It is generally assumed in Bel-
grade that the Roumanian government ordered communications severed
in order to prepare itself for possible eventualities.
The silence from Bucharest, according to the dispatch, is even
taken to indicate that King Ferdinand, whose condition during the

MACHINE GUN FIRED MOVING AUTO KILLS ONE, HURTS SECOND

Assassins Flee As Pair
Fall: Two Others
Wounded

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Gang-
ster machine guns spat again
today, killing Joseph di Salvo
and probably fatally wounding James Debrisco.
Both were walking home
when a heavy limousine
slowed down, sweeping the
street around them with a
deadly hail.
When Di Salvo fell, mortally
wounded, the car gathered
speed and suddenly disappeared.

Di Salvo and Debrisco arrived from Italy only a few months ago. Debrisco could give no motive for the attack.
No witnesses could be found.
The home of Joseph Parrillo was riddled.

The peace pact signed by Chicago gang leaders several months
ago was short-lived, as Thomas
and Charles O'Donnell, lying wounded in a hospital here, will testify today.

The two wounded men are brothers of Edward "Spike" O'Donnell,
leader of a powerful South Side
beer-running syndicate and themselves members and co-leaders of
their brother's gang.

The brothers were fired upon
from a closed automobile as they
stopped in front of a pool room
on S. Ashland Ave. One other man, Clarence Barrett, an alleged
beer-runner, was also wounded.
He probably will die, physicians
declared. The O'Donnell brothers
are expected to recover.

Although the wounded men are
believed to have recognized their
assailants, they observed the traditional ethics of gangland and
refused to give any information to police. The latter were inclined to blame the Salts-McErlane combine, rivals of the O'Donnell gang,
for the shooting.

MOTHER SAVES GIRL FROM HER ATTACKER

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 26.—Police today were searching for a
negro who was frustrated in an attempt last night to attack Miss Edna Pellman, 14, when her mother beat the would-be abductor until he ran away.
The negro grabbed the girl, who
was walking home with her mother, and ran down an alley, carrying her.

John Rushneck, 22, White Cottage, was believed to be suffering
today from fatal injuries received
when a New Lexington-Zanesville
bus sideswiped another car on the New Lexington-Crooksville road at a sharp curve late Thursday.

BATAVIA, O., Nov. 26.—A
check-up of Thanksgiving Day traffic accidents showed that one man
was killed and several others
slightly injured in holiday mishap.
Charles Bestroup, 52, was killed
on a road near here when he was
said to have walked directly in
the path of an oncoming auto.

SENATE CIRCLE GAINS A BEAUTY

Miss Eppes B. Hawes, long regarded as one of most beautiful members of house social set in Washington, is going over to senate side, her father, Harry B. Hawes, having been victorious in Missouri senatorial race. She has arrived in Washington for winter season.

AN EDITORIAL

The Community Chest idea has been abandoned and
the Social Service League and the Red Cross, the two proposed participants will make separate campaigns for
funds for the coming year, with in the next few weeks.

The Red Cross will conduct its fall drive from December 2 to 4.

The Social Service League will make a similar campaign for funds, a short time later.

Both will conduct separate financial campaigns because the Community Chest, promulgated for a time as a means of financing all charitable agencies for the coming year, was abandoned this year owing to unfavorable conditions.

Abandonment of the chest proposal, while recognized as necessary by both the Social Service League and
the Red Cross, was a disappointment. Its consummation
had been worked for jointly and in harmony by these organizations and it was discarded for this year because
other agencies which should participate had already conducted their campaigns, and it was believed the chest
would be more certain of success next year when proper
educational publicity could be given.

Both are worthy organizations, catering to the needs
of the poor and unfortunate, operating with similar aims,
in separate fields.

Support of the Red Cross hearkens back to the days
of the World War when this organization rose to supreme heights. With the end of the war, thousands of soldiers, some of them physically incapacitated for further earning, were thrown back upon society. To aid
these unfortunates, to give them the public support
which is due them for their activities in time of war and
to keep up their morale, the Red Cross has become a great
peace-time operating agency.

Its labors outside the realm of the veterans is also a
big feature of its work, but its charitable activities, other than among world war veterans is confined largely to Greene County outside of Xenia City. In this way it does not conflict with the properly designated functions of the Social Service League which looks after the poor and needy inside of Xenia City. Because of this division of territory the combined work of both societies is needed
to handle the cases of distress that continually come to their attention.

Through the Social Service League Xenia has, and it is hoped, it always will be able to care for its own. The League is Xenia City's own welfare agency, dedicated to helping wisely and efficiently the poor and the destitute
and those who have had misfortune befall them.

The charge has been made that these organizations
are duplicating their charitable ministrations. As the city
and county are divided between the two agencies, nothing
can be farther from the truth. Whether a consolidation could or should be effected is an open question. As matters stand, there is a need for both that can be impressed upon the minds in no better way than to examine the monthly reports of the workers in each or to follow these workers into the realms of sordidness and misery that
too many are willing and anxious to close their eyes upon.

The stories of each should be sufficient to loosen the purse strings of every citizen financially able to contribute.

And in doing so remember that the drive December
2, 3 and 4 is for support of the Red Cross and that another equally deserving agency, the Social Service League
must rest its bid for continued existence of its important
charitable work upon an equal generosity probably in January. Don't let either suffer. Both the Red Cross and the Social Service League deserve and need the support of
everyone.

JUDGE RULES HENRY CARPENTER'S STORY IS NOT ADMISSIBLE

Testimony Is Irrelevant
Court Says—Will Hear
Mrs. Hall

COURT HOUSE, SOMERVILLE,
N. J., Nov. 26.—Henry de la Bruyere
Carpenter's testimony is not ad-
missible, Judge Charles W. Parker
ruled at the resumption of the Hall-
Mills murder trial today. The testimony of Carpenter, a Wall Street
broker, had been halted late Wednesday upon objections by the state to the line of questions put
to him by the defense.

Carpenter had denied the statement of Mrs. Jane Gibson, the state's star witness, that he was at the scene of the murder on the night of September 14, 1922. He is a fourth defendant on the murder charge but is not now on trial. He is to be tried later.

"Mr. Carpenter's testimony is excluded," said Judge Parker, "because no direct testimony was
given at this trial that placed him
at the scene of the crime."

"Anything he testified to along
this line is, therefore, irrelevant."
It was not a question of whether Carpenter is a competent witness,
the judge explained, but a question
as to along what line he should be permitted to testify.

It is believed the state will immediately begin cross-examination
of the defense's finger-print experts.

Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, one
of the defendants, is expected to
take the stand after cross-examination of the finger-print experts is completed. Whether that will be
late today or tomorrow is a matter
of conjecture. Her testimony may prove to be the climax of the trial.

As Attorneys Battle

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Citing obscure legal cases of the past
and delving deep in to the statutes governing court procedure,
opposing counsel held up the conspiracy trial of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of interior, and E.
L. Doheny, millionaire oil operator, for nearly the entire morning
today as they battled over the
admissibility of Doheny's own
story of the $100,000 "loan" to Fall
as recited three years ago to a
senate investigating committee.

Owen J. Roberts, government
counsel, is banking heavily on getting the stenographic report of Do-
heny's statement before the jury
and Frank J. Hogan, for the defense, is equally insistent that its
admission is contrary to law.

Roberts addressed the court for
more than an hour, arguing his
right to produce the testimony on the strength of numerous precedents.

Hogan followed with an equally
imposing array of precedents.
Meanwhile, the jury was excluded
from the court room.

police reported today that they had
been notified of no fatalities.

Relief Hurried To Stricken Parts Of Arkansas,
Missouri and Oklahoma—Many Injured Re-

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., Nov. 26.—Twenty-nine are known to be dead in Arkansas today and more than 1100 injured as attempts were being made to construct telephone
and telegraph wires though the area disrupted by the freak-
ish tornado which swept the state yesterday and last night.

Apparently, two twisters struck, one starting near Heber Springs and traveling southeastward to Sheridan and
the other striking first near Belleville in Yell County and sweeping east to Sheridan and thence to Moscow.

The death toll by towns was listed as follows:

Heber Springs, 15; Moscow, 8; Oppello, 5; Sheridan, 1.
Reports received here from area. From Frederick, Okla., the southwest portion of the state, to Rolla, Mo., the storm skipped along and struck here and there,
wiping out whole villages and destroying lives and property.

ROLLA, Mo., Nov. 26.—Sweeping a path two miles wide, a tornado struck about five miles southeast of here last night, demolishing the Fairview school house, killing live stock and ripping away
barns and homes, according to word received today.

The storm then took a northeasterly direction to Knob View,
where the Frisco railroad station was blown down and other property damage was reported.

All wires east of here are down and no direct communication could be established this morning with the stricken area.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 26.—The
robbery of the Grafton Bank and
Savings Company, April 4, 1925,
was cleared up here today, police
declared as they held "Al" White
and three companions.

Charges of robbing the institution were filed against the trio late
today, police said.

The others whom police implic-
ate in the $14,000 raid include a
teller of a Cleveland bank.
The bank employee is alleged to
have furnished White with the gun
which the latter used in staging
the hold-up. Later he exchanged
new bills for the proceeds of the
robbery, in order to destroy clues,
the police charge.

White, in an alleged confession
which officials say was made to
them today, has also implicated
Joseph Soljak and Russell Sands,
now serving sentence in the Mansfield reformatory for automobile
thefts, as having participated in
the Grafton and North Olmsted
bank robberies.

White escaped from the Mansfield institution August 22, where
he also was serving a term for stealing an automobile, the officers
said.

Thomas Hauser, 19, and John
Hauser, 21, brothers of Bowling
Green, Ohio, were dead and Mrs.
Laura Hauser, 51, their mother,
and F. E. Hauser 55, their father,
were suffering from serious injuries today as the result of a holiday
grade-crossing crash at the Vine
St. crossing of the Pennsylvania
railroad here. The family, enjoying a holiday outing in their motor car, was struck by a Pennsylvania passenger train.

Mrs. Moore, 57, of Alliance, was killed when she was struck by an automobile here yesterday.

PIQUA OPPOSED TO NEW GOVERNMENT

PIQUA, Nov. 26.—Piqua will stick
to the old form of government according to the result of the light
vote polled Tuesday in an election
to change to the charter commission-city manager plan. Only 2555
votes were cast out of a registration of 7500, a third of the voting
population interested enough to vote. Of these two thirds were against the "newfangled" proposition, the vote standing 1807 against to 748, for.

CHILD KILLED

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 26.—Burial
arrangements are to be made today
for the body of six-year-old Joseph Johnson, Jr., who died from injuries received when he was hit by an automobile driven by B. C. Natter, Obetz Junction. The accident occurred near Groveport, Thursday,
when the lad ran in front of Natter's
car.

FAIRFIELD MAN IS SERIOUSLY HURT AT CROSSING ACCIDENT

John Swadner, 37, Fairfield, is expected to recover from injuries received when the auto he was driving was struck by a traction freight at the Main St. crossing in Osborn Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Swadner was removed to Miami Valley Hospital at Dayton where

RETIRE EX-XENIAN AFTER LONG PERIOD OF PENNSY SERVICE

"I always have been a Pennsylvania Railroad man and always will be, with nothing but praise for this wonderful railroad," says William Daughters, veteran Cincinnati Division passenger conductor, former Xenian, who was placed on the Pennsylvania Railroad pension roll of honor on November 1, after having been in active service nearly forty-two years.

Mr. Daughters is sixty-five years old and was retired on account of physical disability. He was born in Franklin County, Ohio, May 11, 1861, and entered the Pennsylvania Railroad service when he was twenty-three years old. He was made a freight conductor in 1889 and was promoted to passenger conductor in 1895.

"My early boyhood was passed on a farm," recalls Mr. Daughters. "While working on this farm, situated on the Little Miami Railroad (now the main line of the Cincinnati Division), I would notice the trains passing. That is where the thought first came to me that I would like to be a railroad man."

"The first work I ever did for the Pennsylvania was putting in ties on the Roxana section, with Thomas Comfort as the section foreman," continued the veteran conductor. "I helped to build the old Grasshopper road that connected with the Cincinnati Division at Claysville Jct."

"One of the many experiences I had while railroading that I shall never forget was when I was running in freight service between Xenia and Richmond. At West Sonora station we had an emergency operator who ran a shoe repair shop and telegraphed when necessary. As our train passed that point one night the shoemaker-operator noticed a car off the track in the middle of our train. He called Dod, son Ohio, where we were stopped."

"We examined the train, but found nothing wrong. We took our engine, flagged back over the train and found that the car had been off the track for about three miles but had jumped back on the track at the road crossing east of the overhead bridge at Sonora Hollow."

"Another peculiar instance happened on train No. 21 of which I was conductor. A woman patron in one of the coaches informed me that her new hat had blown out of the window. I threw off a message at the next office asking the section men to look for it. I received a message at Richmond saying that the hat had been found and would be in St. Louis on her arrival there. This was possible, as train No. 31 carrying the hat passed No. 21. The lady was more than pleased, but wanted to know how the hat would arrive ahead of her."

an improvement was noted in his condition Friday.

He is suffering from bruises and cuts on the arms, legs and body, all of which are not likely to develop seriously, hospital attendants say.

Swadner's small coupe was hit in the rear by the traction just as it had almost cleared the crossing in safety. View of the tracks was obstructed, it is reported.

Members of the traction crew extricated the injured man from the wreckage of the auto and had him taken to the Dayton hospital.

ALLEGED PERSONAL INJURIES BASIS OF DAMAGE SUIT FILED

Alleged personal injuries and damage to his automobile sustained in an auto accident on the Xenia Pike west of Zimmerman, are made the basis of a $500 damage suit filed in Common Pleas Court by Charles E. Geisler, R. R. 7, Xenia, against Oakley O. Warren, 725 E. Second St., Dayton.

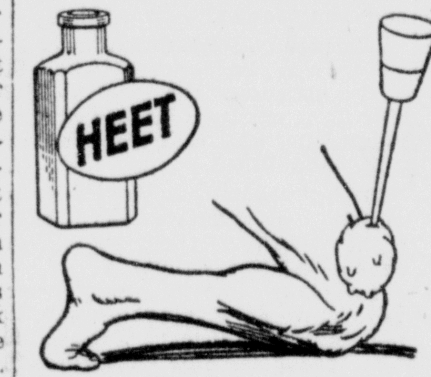

Geisler sets forth his left wrist was cut by flying glass and he was otherwise hurt in asking $400 damage in restitution. Damage to his machine resulted in a repair bill of $100 also alleged.

Defendant is charged with negligence in the following respects: driving at the rate of fifty miles per hour, trying to pass an auto in front without regard to approaching traffic and traveling on the wrong side of the pike. Plaintiff was operating his truck in an easterly direction while the defendant was going west, petition recites. Joseph W. Sharts is attorney for the plaintiff.

Application for authority to transfer $500 from three funds to the road fund has been filed in Common Pleas Court by the board of

HOUSE DAMAGED BY FIRE ON THURSDAY

Fire from an unknown origin, caused considerable damage to the residence of Dr. A. C. Messenger, N. Galloway St., Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Flames were discovered shooting from the roof by a neighbor and Dr. and Mrs. Messenger, who had been in Springfield, were notified. The blaze burned a hole about ten feet square in the roof before extinguished by firemen. Prompt arrival of the fire department saved the house from more serious damage.

Cause of the blaze is a mystery. Dr. Messenger said, since there had been no fire in the furnace and no electric wiring near where the fire started.

PHI DELTA KAPPA
RENEWAL SOCIAL ACTIVITY
Memories of other pleasant social times, sponsored by Ohio Beta Chapter, Phi Delta Kappa Fraternity were held by patrons of the dancing party at the Elk's Club, Thanksgiving night, when the society entertained with a most enjoyable party. This is the first party sponsored by the fraternity in many a month and this fact, together with the congenial group in attendance, added to the pleasure of the evening.

About fifty couples were on the floor and the evening's success was mainly due to the splendid music furnished by The Harmony Kings. A punch bowl in the room adjacent to the dance floor, was a popular spot during the entire evening. Several out-of-town visitors were present for the occasion.

Messrs Elwood Smith, Carlton Anderson and Harry Williams, composed the committee in charge of the affair.

Tales Off The Reel

VOL. 1. FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1926. NO. 8

We often wonder if there are locks to fit all the keys that some men carry around with them.

J. W. Dice of the Fairground Road stocked up with some of those fresh Mids and bran this last week.

O. J. Whitlow traded some corn for Mids this week. A pretty good thing to do.

Jno. Bath and Chas. McElfresh made a deal their heating units smile this week. Started feeding them Miller's Creek and Virginia coal.

J. O. St. John and Frank Wilson renewed their supplies of UNION GRAINS this week. Ask 'em what they think of it for dairy cows.

SMOKED SALT for smoking and curing meat. Investigate it before deciding to follow the old way. S. P. Mallow last year (after using the sausage he put up with Smoked Salt) said he wished he had used it on all of his meat. We have a fresh supply ready to distribute.

Just received a large shipment of Dr. Hess' Panacea Tonic, Disinfectant, Remedies, etc.

If we published all the names of satisfied users of our coals we would have to buy the Gazette. We have three cars of coal on the way. Let us have your order now.

Complete Your Sports Wardrobe With a Straight-Line Coat of Gaily Patterned Fur.

The smartest furs for sports use are the skins patterned in a definite design such as leopard, chipmunk, civet cat and the myriad stencilled gazelle pelts. With the exception of the black and white civet cat, the majority of these gaily patterned furs are in the tan, brown and tawny yellow shades—the most satisfactory colors for sports wear.

Sketched today is a straight-line coat of gazelle stencilled in a brown and tan design. Because of the sports nature of this wrap, the collar and cuffs are of the same fur as the rest of the coat. The lines, also, are straight and flareless to further accent the tailored effect.

The only note of decoration appears on the border which is trimmed with two rows of brown gros grain piping—a form of trimming quite in character with the masculine severity of the other details.

Almost as decorative as the spotted fur is the lining of tan kasha bordered in henna and white wool embroidery.

With this youthful coat of stencilled gazelle is worn a dark chic hat and a melon-shaped muff of the same fur.

TERRIBLE SIGHT—FOR THIRSTY

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 26.—It was a very ghastly sight.

The negro, stepping from a street car, calmly jerked a knife from somewhere on his person, and serenely proceeded to jab at his side and stomach several times.

Three policemen looked on in pop-eyed amazement.

As the darkey's clothes became drenched, he still stood firm, jabbing the knife into his abdomen.

The policemen perceived he was getting somewhat thinner as the stuff continued to trickle to the pavement.

Then, instead of falling prostrate, the negro started to run!

Roused into action the "law" captured him.

STRUCK BY AUTO

Clerk of Courts Harvey Elam was knocked down but not seriously injured by an automobile driven by Mrs. McKay, New Burlington, while walking to his office Friday morning.

They Never Anger A Person!

We have never heard of a person getting peeved because some one gave them a Fountain Pen! Judging from this (after investigation), we would state that a Parker Fountain Pen must be darn NEAR a perfect Gift!

You MUST Use Judgment!

Everyone doesn't care for PINK STATIONERY! Yet SOME folks PREFER that sort! So in making a selection for that name on your list, be real careful about PICKING 'em. Fortunately for all concerned we carry a BIG supply in a WIDE variety with all sorts of prices. Don't forget this.

Prescriptions!

Steadily month after month we see our PRESCRIPTION FILE grow BIGGER! For this gesture of confidence on your part, we are truly grateful and very proud!

First Act Over!

Now for the BIG SHOW!!

It's very seldom that a merchant will allow his customers to pick their OWN slogan for HIS store. Generally about this time of year you see a whole slew of signs like—"DO YOUR SHOPPING NOW" and "SHOP HERE FIRST" or "TRY THE DRUG STORE FIRST." AND ALL of these are rather good and quite useful but they never MEAN anything. Nobody pays any attention to them and you all just do as you please waiting until the WEEK BEFORE CHRISTMAS to really BUY things! Am I right?

TODAY we are going to start using the slogan which has been selected by 46 customers out of 60 actual vote! These 46 represent youth, middle age and elderly people about evenly divided. If the slogan they selected doesn't work successfully, it's not OUR fault but THEIRS! Here it is:

LAY IT AWAY!

This means that you can select your Christmas presents NOW and can pay a little down or ANY down and have them "laid away" until a few days before Christmas, at which time you can either come in and gettem or we can arrange to SEND them to you. And we think that's a mity fine stunt. For BOTH of us. Even SHORTY approved of it!

DOC SAYRE.

Shorty Says:-

As soon as I heard this new slogan I went right out to explain the idea to Roscoe, my pet turkey. I told Roscoe plainly that I wanted him to "lay away" until a couple of days before Christmas and gave him my reasons! He argued again for a time but when I explained that he had nothing else to do but laze around and get chesky, he agreed to do it, which proves that Roscoe is a real philosopher.

Put into a hot oven, covered, for twenty minutes, and serve piping hot.

CABBAGE PEPPERS

Parboil green peppers for five minutes. Season three cups of finely chopped raw cabbage (for five of six peppers) and mix with one cupful of minced cooked ham and one-half cupful of melted butter. PROGRESS IN FLYING

After a score of years in experimentation, aviation can count only about 5,000 planes in the air over the United States, exclusive of those in the army, navy and marines. Our automobiles number millions.

The annual increase in the demand for automobiles has been so great that progress in automobile engineering could hardly keep pace with it.

Such advance in numbers ahead of design and improvement would be deplorable in aviation. Permanent popularity of the airplane must depend on its careful engineering development. Factors of safety, reliability and achievement must be given painstaking attention to a considerably greater degree than was necessary in the case of the automobile.

Passenger cars came before trucks in automobile history. Commercial planes came before pleasure planes in aviation history.

That's the difference in the progress of these vehicles of travel. If we got ahead of the engineers in one line, we're wisely following them in the other.

HOUDINI BOUND AT LAST

Houdini's death removes from the platform one of the most interesting characters of the past and present generations. Most people believed Houdini to be an oriental on account of his name, but that is announced was assumed. He began life as a minister's son, who delighted in "skinning the cat" on the trapeze in the back yard of the paragon. As he grew up the trapeze performances became a part of his everyday life and he performed with no mean success. This led to an interest in the magician's art and in that he ultimately became the most proficient in this country. He believed in entertaining the people by an exhibition of dexterity rather than of mysticism. Where others tried to make the people believe they were masters of magic, and were doing their stunts by the aid of uncanny spiritual forces, Houdini explained it was all done by natural means and the skill of the performers. He offered to duplicate any trick of any magician or spiritualist and so far as we have learned he was always able to do it.

Now his body is encased in a brass coffin, according to instructions left in his will. While in life Houdini was able to escape from any kind of box in which he might be enclosed and sealed by those in his audience, now at last he is to be laid away in a brass coffin from which he will make no attempt to escape until the resurrection day, when his escape from the coffin and the grave will be no more miraculous than that of any of the rest of us.

How to Achieve Beauty

FIVE AGES OF BEAUTY

The Skin Over Forty

And now we come to the discussion of the skin that is over forty, the skin of mother whose boy or girl is probably just about to enter prep school or college—the wife of the conservative business man or the woman who is active in business or professional life.

The average woman at this age has probably lived through many trying moments. However, if she has watched the decades from twenty to thirty and thirty to forty with a careful vigilance, and has endeavored to preserve her strength, her beauty, then she has retained much of her youthfulness.

The beauty regime of you women of forty or over, should continue very much along the lines that you adopted during your thirties, but with increased effort. Of course, scrupulous cleansing is of basic importance, but your stimulating creams and muscle tightening preparations must be strong enough to really do something for you. It is not sufficient that you choose just a bland pleasantly scented cream, especially if your skin is inclined to sallowness, liver spots or moth spots. Your patting and slapping treatments must also be firmer and more frequent.

Many women over forty are troubled with a skin that is inclined to dryness, with perhaps a tendency to lines and wrinkles. This type of skin should receive abundant applications of a rich nourishing cream, that will help fill out the hollows and ward off wrinkles. Special attention should be given to the area around the eyes where crowfeet and puffiness make their appearance. Put in a generous portion of rich anti-wrinkle cream for crowfeet and allow it to remain on at least twenty minutes and overnight if possible. For puffiness gently pat in an astringent jelly until it becomes entirely absorbed in the skin.

At the age of forty or over, the tendency of the face is to droop, and this must be vigilantly guarded against. You must impress thoroughly upon your subconscious mind, the importance of counteracting downward lines. Upward lines should be cultivated, so in the applications of your creams and lotions be sure to use upward motions. During your treatments stop now and then and press the face firmly with an upward bracing motion. Be faithful with the use of your rejuvenating stimulants for they whip the blood to the surface and stimulate the circulation so that it makes the tissue of starved skin responsive to rich feeding creams.

Complete relaxation and the wearing of sensible shoes, especially those with rubber heels, is of especial importance to you women of forty or over. Twenty minutes or a half hour's rest and quiet each day will do much to help you retain the clearness and freshness of your skin, the brightness of your eyes and the evenness of your disposition.

Another article on the "Five Ages of Beauty" will follow.

The Volunteer

by Dr. A. F. Currier

AN INTERESTING CASE OF AMNESIA

A metropolitan paper tells a good story of a man in Chicago who after working sixteen to eighteen hours a day in a business which he was developing, broke down in mind and body, felt that he could not make his family happy, went to the river and pulled off of his coat with the intention of jumping in and drowning himself. His resolution seems to have given out, however, and he started for home. He did not reach home but apparently took a train which landed him at Shreveport, La., where he obtained a position which he held for a while and then left for Dallas, Tex. There he sold automobiles and subsequently became a street contractor, conducting a business successfully and making some money. All this time he seems to have been entirely oblivious of his home and family although competent during a period of three years to conduct business and attend to the ordinary duties of everyday life.

It is quite interesting to learn that after he left home his son left school and gave up his entire time to efforts to trace and locate his father and did not succeed in finding him until the end of the three-year period. When the son found him the man's normal individuality returned to him, whether suddenly or gradually is not stated, and he is reported to have said that he would be glad to go back to Chicago and take up his business there where he had left it off. The only feature lacking in this romantic tale is the woman element and it is quite creditable, not to say unusual, that this feature should be left out.

This case, if recorded truthfully, and as to this I have some doubt, is not merely a case of amnesia or loss of memory but of loss of individuality as well.

Such cases, in so far as they are genuine, do show evidence of mental disease but there is always an amount of embellishment when they get into the newspapers, which arouses skepticism in the minds of the conservative.

If there had not been so much method in his madness it would have been more creditable. It is a little hard to understand how

this man could have retained enough shrewdness to transact business and do it successfully, meet all kinds of people and yet never arouse a suspicion in his own mind or in the minds of those with whom he was dealing that he was a point or two off his base.

That even the violently insane may sometimes show the usual and expected mental reactions was illustrated in the case of an esteemed medical friend of mine who tried to kill the owner of the institution where he was detained. He was then locked in a room in the third story of the building. From this he escaped at night, dropping from the window to the piazza below, breaking a rib or two and bruising himself badly. From the piazza he dropped to the ground and made his way to a nearby swiftly flowing river.

Into this he plunged to drown himself but the water was too cold, he said he hadn't the courage to finish the job. He then went straight to the house, quiet and well behaved again, while his keepers were searching for him in every direction with lanterns and torches. And there was no amnesia about this case.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. P.—Am a nervous wreck, broken down physically and mentally. I have trouble in my stomach and in my pelvic organs, also palpitations of the heart and awful nervous spells. Answer—I should think from your letter you were overworked and worried and that rest and change of scene for a few weeks would do you more good than any amount of medicine. Do try and arrange your household affairs so that you can get away for at least a month.

Ask Dr. Currier that medical question that has been puzzling you. Confine your letter to fifty words and send stamped, address—ed envelope for reply. He cannot, of course, make individual diagnoses, and he reserves the right to decide as to the propriety of queries.

RICHER STUDENTS AFFECTING MORALS

DELAWARE, O., Nov. 2.—The richer class of college students who are adapted to a "faster" type of living has caused the apparent decline of the moral standards of college students, according to Dr. E. L. Rice, professor of zoology of Ohio Wesleyan University.

Dr. Rice believes, however, that the whole situation has been greatly exaggerated.

"College students are bad only because they want to keep up with the times. With the increasing cost of institutions of learning, necessitated by greater upkeep expenditures, there is a tendency to dilute our American colleges with the wealthier class of students who are used to so-called 'faster' living, says Dr. Rice. 'Many of this type do questionable things only because it is the fad.'"

Dr. Rice is one of the authorities who testified at the Scoopes trial in Dayton, Tenn.

"TOM AND DICK—THE TIRE BOYS"

KELLYGRAMS

by FRED C KELLY

HOW MANY SONGS DO YOU KNOW?

I attended a vaudeville show recently in which one performer sits blindfolded by a piano on the stage while the other member of the team goes into the audience and asks people, one at a time, to whisper the name of a favorite tune or song. Then he mysteriously moves his hands as if mesmerizing the pianist who immediately begins to play the song asked for.

During the intermission, a group of us discussed how the clever feat was probably accomplished. We assumed that the man's motions with his hands are silent signals in code to somebody behind the scenes who then communicates such signal to the pianist.

"But," asked one of our group, "how could they memorize code signals for all the songs people might mention?" Suppose that there are 1,000 people in the audience and no two would have in mind the same favorite song?"

Of course the answer is that it would be impossible to find 1,000 people or even 100 people each with a favorite song different from all the rest. There would be many duplications. Thousands of songs have been published, but the ones which sunk deepest into your own memory had a quality which made them remembered by other people. Such songs are not numerous. The same is true of books. Look at the list of new books published every week and then consider how few, even of the best sellers, will make any lasting impression. When several hundred college students are asked for their favorite books, surprisingly few different titles are mentioned.

We even use fewer different words in conversation or writing than we think. A careful tabulation of several thousands letters, including both business and love letters, showed that a list of 2,000 words would cover nine-tenths of the vocabulary of an average person.

We might be surprised then at how few books or songs we know by name, in spite of the thousands that we have to choose from. And perhaps still more surprising is the fact that those we do know are mostly the same ones that the neighbors do. Indeed, this statement might even be broadened to say that most of our knowledge on any subject whatever is so scanty that we share with nearly everybody.

Little Old New York

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1926
NEW YORK Nov. 26.—A New York Columnist announced that he "prefers" Ring Lardner to Rudyard Kipling.

It's that sort of stuff that keeps the smile on the face of The Times of Detroit and holds the Woolworth heirs to the Trail of the Lonesome Dime.

Ring Lardner and Kipling.
Bud Fisher and Michael Angelo.
Irving Berlin and Beethoven.
Fleet mignon and hot dawgs.
O tempora! O morosa!

A traveling outlooker reports that oyster stew costs but thirty-five cents in Pittsburgh, against sixty cents in New York. "Vel," he observes, "the smoky city is nearly 500 miles from the bivalve region, which lies at New York's front door."

He overlooks the fact, of course, that the price of sixty cents in New York includes pearls.

Priced at $32.50, New York shoe merchants are advertising the latest thing in footwear, called "Captain Kidd" boots.

The trade name, I suppose, being prompted by ancestry.

Greenwich Village, with its attic studios, cellar restaurants and stable cabarets—where wide and wondrous ties were worn to hide a threadbare shirt, and inspiration soared and sang 'mid Chinese gods and dirt—is slipping into the realm of mournful tradition to the accompaniment of the wrecker's hammer and the staccato of the riveter.

Fourteen-story apartment houses with charlotte russe trimmings and liveried attendants are supplanting the rookeries of Bohemia. The funny little book shops are disappearing along with the creaking, painted signs featuring black cats and variegated parrots.

The long-haired lads and short-haired lassies have packed their

Neitzches, Schopenhauers, their rhyming dictionaries, copies of Havelock, Ellis, Freud, dog-eared back numbers of The Mercury and plaster busts of the heroes of the Radical Renaissance, and have trekked across the river of Brooklyn Heights, down to Staten Island, up to the Bronx and back home to Texas and Indiana.

Harry Kemp, who some time ago deserted the village because it had degenerated into a place where "butchers are mistaken for poets and poets for butchers," has returned.

Harry tried life on the top floor of a tenement house on the East Side. The "polyglot boarding house" stuff didn't make much of a hit with the wandering rhymster. He found it too dirty.

"They don't clean the snow off the streets over there," said Harry. "Aside from that, there are too many dead cats lying around."

The villagers who have decided to remain in their old haunts are of the Lesser Breed who are not, and never were motivated by the real spirit of Bohemia.

When "dreams" don't pay, out the window with them and substitute something that can be translated into porterehouse steak, cigarettes and bootleg hooch.

Hence the trick book stalls and bizarre antique shops that today dot the neighborhood, spilling over into the fringe.

One proprietor of a Den of Dilettantes down there attires himself in cow puncher's rig. Another rigs himself out in the make-up of a comic opera pirate. And one "Bohemian" who used to write hand-forged verses for the newspapers gets hold of a house, paints the front, a la Peppe ("the real estate king of the village") and now goes to Europe every summer on the profits of subletting to the "bourgeoisie."

'Me Too' Cries Alumni Team As It Loses To Central

Former Blue And White Play In Opposition To No Avail

CENTRAL High gridders and the Alumni's make a shift eleven, having been placed in a position where it was practically compulsory for one team to win, the former did this little trick impressively 14 to 0 in the revival of their annual Thanksgiving Day tilt Thursday morning at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

Both teams were reluctant to do it and it was not until the third quarter that Vic Kolb's lighter but better balanced team scored its first touchdown and acquired what may be designated as a substantial lead.

Alumni, composed of many famous high school stars of the past four years presented a creditable lineup and besides holding its own in the first half came dangerously near to scoring on one occasion.

In the final periods the Alumni weakened and seemed utterly at sea before the Central straight football formations and intricate overhead attack, Xenia scoring one touchdown in each of the final periods.

Central's marking of the superiority is best demonstrated by the fact it scored nine first downs to a scant four for the opposition. Central started off impressively after receiving the kickoff, reeling off two straight first downs on line plays and a nineteen-yard pass to Morton, but was ultimately forced to kick. Frequent exchanges of kicks and a thirteen-yard dash around end by Bob Finlay, 1925 star, featured the remainder of the period with the graduates playing well.

In the second period Alumni took the ball in midfield and began its most concerted drive for a score, making three first downs on line backs by Don Fuller and Zell and a twelve-yard pass to Finlay, and marching almost half the length of the field before the threatening drive was halted on the twenty-yard line. Fuller disparaging for a touchdown, dropped back to the twenty for a drop-kick which was wide by inches.

In the third period Central came into its own with its main offensive weapon, passes. Taking the ball in midfield, a pass to Morton was good for eight. Smith swung down and a ten-yard loss resulting from a bad pass from center was more than atoned for when Smith heaved another long one to Gibney for a twenty-five yard gain. On the fourth down and an open formation play, the Alumni was caught napping and Captain Max Marshall stood in the end zone and caught a long pass from Smith for the first score. Smith added the goal.

In the final quarter Central was constantly bidding for a touchdown. A fifteen-yard pass to Marshall and a thirteen-yard run by Book availed little as Alumni regained possession of the ball on downs on its twenty-five. As the period drew to a close, the Alumni line severed relations with the backfield. Randall fumbled and the disowned ball rolled to the thirty-one where a Central player smothered it.

Morton took a pass on his fingertips and squirmed to the fifteen-yard line for a gain of six yards. He then penetrated tackle for eight and Alumni regained possession of the ball on downs and the concluding touchdown, after which Smith accurately kicked goal.

The contest served as a fitting final game of the season and kept intact Central's record of an uncrossed goal line at home this year. With more practice and a set of signals the Alumni would probably have furnished stiffer opposition due to presence on the team of such familiar stars of former years as Zell, Fuller, Chitty, Finlay, Holton, Woolley, Cowan, Spahr, McCoy, Don Currie, Horner, Donovan, Bottorff, Parrett and others. However the grads have no particular reason to feel discouraged for they might have lost to a worse team. Summaries:

WILBERFORCE LOWERS COLORS OF W. VA. INSTITUTE THURSDAY

Wilberforce University lowered the curtain on the 1926 football season by nosing out a 3 to 2 victory over its traditional rival, West Virginia College Institute, in the annual inter-sectional Turkey Day classic before a record crowd of 6,000 fans Thursday at Neil Park, Columbus.

Followers of the team were in high spirits Thursday for although Wilberforce has often come close to victory, West Virginia has long been a thorn in the side of its national championship aspirations.

Quarterback Green's toe did not fall him at the critical moment in the first quarter when the playing field was dry, and he booted a field goal from the thirty-five yard mark. Later in the game Wilberforce made a safety and kept its goal line protected.

The victory gave Wilberforce undisputed claim to second place among the "Big Four" colleges and to runnerup position to Howard University of Washington D. C., in the matter of national negro college honors.

Howard won the Eastern Negro College football championship and the mythical national title Thursday by overwhelming Lincoln University of Philadelphia, Pa., 32 to 0, and kept its perfect record for the season intact.

Following the Wilberforce game, the annual Thanksgiving prom was held under the auspices of Alla Baba Temple No. 52, A. E. A. O. N. M. S. Thursday night at Memorial Hall, in Columbus.

WHOLESALE PRICES SHOWING DECLINE

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 26.—
Wholesale grocery sales fell off
appreciably in Ohio in October, the bureau of business research, Ohio
State University, reports in its monthly bulletin, but the average price declined also. Average
prices for the trade, in fact, were
the lowest in months, based on index numbers compiled from the
monthly wholesale grocery sales
for October were ninety-one and
four-tenths per cent of sales for
the corresponding month a year
ago. Outstandings last month
were only ninety-five and seven-
tenths per cent of those for October, 1925. Average prices a month ago were only ninety-five
and four-tenths of those for October a year ago.

The curve for dollar sales
dropped four and nine-tenths
points during October from the
high point of the year established
in September. This decline was partially accounted for, however,
by the fact that the price index
for the month also fell off three
and one-tenth points. The price
index, incidentally, the bureau reports, "now stands at a lower level
than at any time since January 1923."

All three districts into which
the state is divided for the survey reflect the decrease in sales,
but the northeastern section shows
the smallest percentage of loss
from September.

Monthly sales in northeastern Ohio were only eighty-three and
six tenths per cent, however, of
those for October 1925, while those
of southeastern Ohio were ninety-
five and eight-tenths per cent, and
those of western Ohio ninety-nine
and seven-tenths per cent.

ever, dropped only from 111.5 to 110.0.

GANG WARFARE IS RESUMED IN CHICAGO

NON-STOP FLYER CONTINUES PANAMA FLIGHT FROM ISLAND

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Determined to get to Panama in two
hops if not in one, Commander
H. T. Bartlett piloted the all-
metal PN-10 seaplane No. 2 out of Siguana bay, Isle of Pines, at 6:55
o'clock this morning and headed
south over the Caribbean.

Bartlett, flying the second plane
Wednesday in the navy's attempt-
ed non-stop flight from Hampton
Roads to Panama, was forced
down near the Isle of Pines when
his oil supply failed. His team
flying plane No. 1, also was forced
goal, due to a broken connecting
rod.

hop-off took place this morning, to
770 miles. Barring accidents, it
should be an easy performance, as Bartlett had completed almost 1, 200 miles of the flight when the
failure of his oil supply forced him
down on Wednesday.

course of the plane southward
from Siguana bay this morning,
prepared to pick up Bartlett and
his companions, should misfor-
tune overtake them.

Connell's plane No. 1 is being
towed to Guantanamo, the navy
need a new starboard engine be-

See Army and Navy

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Eighty-
seven potential generals and ad-
mirals of the United States army
and navy were in Chicago today,
prepared for what might prove to
be the toughest battle of their careers. It all depends on what success the League of Nations or
some other allied agency for pre-
serving peace may have in preventing war.

the forty-six members of the
naval academy football squad
had been installed in their
rooms at the fashionable Wind-
ermere Hotel here, there was
one room and bath still vacant.
"Where is it?" asked the anxious bellhop.

down the aisle tugging at a
rope. On the other end of the
goat, mascot of the Middies.

"Bill" was assigned to the un-
occupied room. He will be kept
there and treated as royally as
any member of the team.

termination than the Army-Navy
football game scheduled for Soldiers' memorial stadium here tomorrow afternoon.

tioned above are members of the
rival grid teams. Forty-one of them hail from the military academy at West Point and forty-six
from the naval academy at Annapolis.

The gridgers, arrayed in their impressive uniforms, arrived here
yesterday. "Navy Blue" Ingram,
coach of the Middies, was in
charge of the seagoing contingent
and Biff Jones, famous mentor of
the Cadets, headed the West Point
squad.

After lunch and a brief rest,
the squads took the field for limbering-up exercises. Coach Jones ran his troops through a brief signal drill.

Today, 1,115 cadets and 1,940
midshipmen, accompanied by a
distinguished group of diplomats,
arrive to cheer for one or the
other side.

This afternoon, Chicago will see
this notable gathering parade down
field, where the new $3,000,000 stadium will be dedicated to the men
who lost their lives in the World War.

Vice President Dawes, Mayor
Dever, the president of the South
park board and the superintend-
ents of the two service academies
will be outstanding figures in these ceremonies. Each will make a
brief address.

snow was the official forecast for
the big game tomorrow. The field,
however, has been protected for
weeks with a heavy tarpaulin and,
unless the snow is unusually
heavy, it is not expected to inter-

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—There is
strong belief in Belgrade that Roumania is on the eve of civil
war, says a dispatch from Belgrade
to the Vossische Zeitung today.
The dispatch says that the fact
that all telephone connections with Bucharest have been cut since
three days ago strengthens this belief.

It is generally assumed in Bel-
grade that the Roumanian government ordered communications severed in order to prepare itself for
possible eventualities.

The silence from Bucharest, according to the dispatch, is even

MACHINE GUN FIRED MOVING AUTO KILLS ONE, HURTS SECOND

Wounded

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Gang-
ster machine guns spat again
today, killing Joseph di Salvo
and probably fatally wound-
ing James Debrisco.

Both were walking home
when a heavy limousine
slowed down, sweeping the
street around them with a
deadly hail.

wounded, the car gathered
speed and suddenly disappeared.

Di Salvo and Debrisco arrived from Italy only a few months ago. Debrisco could
give no motive for the attack.
No witnesses could be found.
The home of Joseph Parrillo was
riddled.

The peace pact signed by Chicago gang leaders several months
ago was short-lived, as Thomas
and Charles O'Donnell, lying
wounded in a hospital here, will
testify today.

ers of Edward "Spike" O'Donnell,
leader of a powerful South Side
beer-running syndicate and themselves members and co-leaders of
their brother's gang.

stopped in front of a pool room
on S. Ashland Ave. One other
man, Clarence Barrett, an alleged
beer-runner, was also wounded.
He probably will die physicians
declared. The O'Donnell brothers
are expected to recover.

Although the wounded men are
believed to have recognized their
assailants, they observed the traditional ethics of gangland and
refused to give any information to
police. The latter were inclined to blame the Salis-McErlane combine, rivals of the O'Donnell gang,
for the shooting.

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 26.—Police today were searching for a
negro who was frustrated in an attempt last night to attack Miss Edna Pellman, 14, when her mother beat the would-be abductor until he ran away.

was walking home with her mother, and ran down an alley, carrying her.

Mrs. Pellman followed and beat the negro with her fists, it was reported to police today. With her clothing partly torn away, the negro dropped the girl and ran.

John Rushneck, 22, White Cottage, was believed to be suffering
when a New Lexington-Zanesville
bus sidwiped another car on the New Lexington-Crooksville road at
a sharp curve last Thursday.

Roy Kogatz, 28, New Lexington, was badly cut and bruised and four other persons slightly hurt.

check-up of Thanksgiving Day traffic accidents showed that one man
was killed and several others
slightly injured in holiday mishaps.

Charles Bestrop, 52, was killed
on a road near here when he was
said to have walked directly in

Miss Eppes B. Hawes, long regarded as one of most beautiful members of house social set in Washington, is
going over to senate side, her father, Harry B. Hawes,
having been victorious in Missouri senatorial race. She

AN EDITORIAL

The Community Chest idea has been abandoned and
the Social Service League and the Red Cross, the two
proposed participants will make separate campaigns for
funds for the coming year, within the next few weeks.

cember 2 to 4.

The Social Service League will make a similar campaign for funds, a short time later.

cause the Community Chest, promulgated for a time as
a means of financing all charitable agencies for the coming year, was abandoned this year owing to unfavorable
conditions.

Abandonment of the chest proposal, while recognized as necessary by both the Social Service League and
had been worked for jointly and in harmony by these or-
other agencies which should participate had already conducted their campaigns, and it was believed the chest
educational publicity could be given.

of the poor and unfortunate, operating with similar aims,
in separate fields.

of the World War when this organization rose to supreme heights. With the end of the war, thousands of soldiers, some of them physically incapacitated for further earning, were thrown back upon society. To aid
these unfortunates, to give them the public support
which is due them for their activities in time of war and
to keep up their morale, the Red Cross has become a great
peace-time operating agency.

Its labors outside the realm of the veterans is also a
big feature of its work, but its charitable activities, other
than among world war veterans is confined largely to Greene County outside of Xenia City. In this way it does
not conflict with the properly designated functions of
the Social Service League which looks after the poor and needy inside of Xenia City. Because of this division of
territory the combined work of both societies is needed
their attention.

Through the Social Service League Xenia has, and it is hoped, it always will be able to care for its own. The League is Xenia City's own welfare agency, dedicated to
helping wisely and efficiently the poor and the destitute
and those who have had misfortune befall them.

are duplicating their charitable ministrations. As the city
and county are divided between the two agencies, nothing
can be farther from the truth. Whether a consolidation
could or should be effected is an open question. As matters stand, there is a need for both that can be impressed upon the minds in no better way than to examine the
monthly reports of the workers in each or to follow these
workers into the realms of sordidness and misery that
too many are willing and anxious to close their eyes upon.

purse strings of every citizen financially able to contribute.

And in doing so remember that the drive December
2, 3 and 4 is for support of the Red Cross and that an-
other equally deserving agency, the Social Service League
must rest its bid for continued existence of its important
charitable work upon an equal generosity probably in Jan-
Social Service League deserve and need the support of
everyone.

JUDGE RULES HENRY CARPENDER'S STORY IS NOT ADMISSIBLE

Court Says—Will Hear
Mrs. Hall

COURT HOUSE, SOMERVILLE,
N. J., Nov. 26.—Henry de la Bruyere
Carpender's testimony is not ad-
missible, Judge Charles W. Parker
ruled at the resumption of the Hall-
Mills murder trial today. The testimony of Carpender, a Wall Street
broker, had been halted late Wednesday upon objections by the
state to the line of questions put
to him by the defense.

Carpender had denied the statement of Mrs. Jane Gibson, the
state's star witness, that he was at the scene of the murder on the night of September 14, 1922. He is a fourth defendant on the murder
charge but is not now on trial. He
is to be tried later.

"Mr. Carpender's testimony is excluded," said Judge Parker, "be-
cause no direct testimony was
given at this trial that placed him
at the scene of the crime."

"Anything he testified to along
this line is, therefore, irrelevant."

It was not a question of whether Carpender is a competent witness,
the judge explained, but a question
as to along what line he should be
permitted to testify.

It is believed the state will immediately begin cross-examination
of the defense's fingerprint experts.

Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, one
of the defendants, is expected to
take the stand after cross-examination of the fingerprint experts is
completed. Whether that will be
late today or tomorrow is a matter
of conjecture. Her testimony may

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Cit-
ing obscure legal cases of the past
and delving deep in to the sta-
tutes governing court procedure,
opposing counsel held up the conspiracy trial of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of interior, and E.
L. Doheny, millionaire oil operator, for nearly the entire morning
today as they battled over the
admissibility of Doheny's own
story of the $100,000 "loan" to Fall
as recited three years ago to a
senate investigating committee.

counsel, is banking heavily on getting the stenographic report of Do-
heny's statement before the jury
and Frank J. Hogan, for the defense, is equally insistent that its
admission is contrary to law.

Roberts addressed the court for
more than an hour, arguing his
right to produce the testimony on the strength of numerous precedents.

Hogan followed with an equally
imposing array of precedents.
Meanwhile, the jury was excluded
from the court room.

more or less seriously injured in traffic accidents here yesterday,
police reported today that they had
been notified of no fatalities.

GYPSIES TRAVEL UNDER GUARD AFTER ALLEGED GUNMEN ATTACK

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 26.—
Guarded by half a dozen detectives,
a band of 150 gypsies, in fast motor cars, today was speeding along the Pennsylvania-Ohio frontier, enroute to their national headquarters, in Washington, after appealing to Cleveland police for protection from a gang of Chicago gunmen.

The gypsies, desperate with fear,
fled into a Cleveland police station
after they had been accosted by two motors filled with the alleged gunmen on the road between here and Detroit.

Leaving their motor cars standing in the middle of the street,
blocking traffic, the gaily-attired band of wanderers rushed into the station house shouting incoherently.

Missouri and Oklahoma—Many Injured Re-

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., Nov. 26.—Twenty-nine are known to be dead in Arkansas today and more than 1100 injured as attempts were being made to construct telephone
and telegraph wires though the area disrupted by the freak-
ish tornado which swept the state yesterday and last night.

Apparently, two twisters struck, one starting near Heber Springs and traveling southeastward to Sheridan and
the other striking first near Belleville in Yell County and
sweeping east to Sheridan and thence to Moscow.

The death toll by towns was listed as follows:

Heber Springs, 15; Moscow, 8; Opeello, 5; Sheridan, 1.
Reports received here from area. From Frederick, Okla., in Southern Missouri and Oklahoma, added ten more to the list of dead, making thirty-nine in all that met death in the storm.

The dead at Heber Springs:
Roy Morris, wife and baby; Ivan
Parker, wife and two brothers, Lee and Billy; Mrs. O. C. Woodson, Mrs. M. L. Rambo, John Jones and wife, Ralph Wiggins and wife, Mrs.
R. M. Sayes, wife of Rev. Sayes,
and baby of H. C. Riggle.

The dead at Opeello, in Conway County:

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Stafford and daughter, Nettie; Mrs. J. W. Jones and son, James.

The dead at Sheridan:
Topsy Lybrand, 10, a twin.

The names of the dead at Moscow have not been learned as communication with that town had not been established.

Relief trains carrying doctors,
nurses and supplies were being rushed to the stricken zones from Pine Bluff and Zephyr.

Telephone and telegraph wires
were severed, making communication with the stricken towns difficult. Most of the reports concerning damage of the storm came over railroad wires.

The home of Jake Stafford, at Opeello, was blown away while a party was in progress and Stafford, his wife and daughter were killed and seven others hurt. Five other houses were blown away.

A second terrific windstorm at Harbor Springs delayed recovery
of bodies but at least fifteen have been found there, according to a report over the Missouri and North Arkansas railroad wires. The message said more were believed dead.

The storm descended into Louisiana during the night and the camp
of the Roxana Petroleum Company,
three miles north of Haynesville,
was struck. Twelve persons there were injured, with others reported missing.

Property damage was heavy in towns hit by the storm; in some sections, whole sections of blocks
being torn down.

WEST PLAINS, Mo., Nov. 26.—
Three persons were killed and more than a score injured at Brandsville, twelve miles south of here, when the twister which ripped through Arkansas yesterday took a dip into this section of Missouri, according to word received here this morning.

The storm demolished several buildings and homes in Brands-ville and caused consternation
among the citizens in their hurry
to find shelter.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 26.—
That the death toll in yesterday's freakish storms in Oklahoma, Arkansas and Southern Missouri may reach forty was indicated here today as thurgers reports from Southern Missouri and Northwestern Arkansas came in from stricken areas.

Four deaths at Brandsville, Mo., near West Plains, and two at Competition, near Lebanon, in addition to thirty-three in Arkansas
and Oklahoma, have been reported.

Others seriously injured are expected to die. Many were injured at Heber Springs, Ark., at which fifteen were killed.

Property damage, estimated all told at near the million-dollar
mark, was extensive over a wide

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 26.—The
robbery of the Grafton Bank and
Savings Company, April 4, 1925,
was cleared up here today, police
declared as they held "Al" White
and three companions.

Charges of robbing the institution were filed against the trio late
today, police said.

The others whom police implic-
ate in the $14,000 raid include a
teller of a Cleveland bank.

The bank employee is alleged to
have furnished White with the gun
which the latter used in staging
the hold-up. Later he exchanged
new bills for the proceeds of the
robbery, in order to destroy clues,
the police charge.

White, in an alleged confession
which officials say was made to
them today, has also implicated
Joseph Solack and Russell Sands,
now serving sentence in the Mans-
field reformatory for automobile
thefts, as having participated in
the Grafton and North Olmsted
bank robberies.

White escaped from the Mans-
field institution August 22, where
he also was serving a term for
stealing an automobile, the officers
said.

Thomas Hauser, 19, and John
Hauser, 21, brothers of Bowling
Green, Ohio, were dead and Mrs.
Laura Hauser, 51, their mother,
and F. E. Hauser 55, their father,
were suffering from serious injuries today as the result of a holiday
grade-crossing crash at the Vine
St. crossing of the Pennsylvania
railroad here. The family, enjoying a holiday outing in their motor car, was struck by a Pennsylvania passenger train.

Mrs. Moore, 57, of Alliance, was killed when she was struck by an
automobile here yesterday.

PIQUA, Nov. 26.—Piqua will stick
to the old form of government according to the result of the light
vote polled Tuesday in an election
to change to the charter commission-city manager plan. Only 2555
votes were cast out of a registration of 7500, a third of the voting
population interested enough to
against the "newfangled" proposition, the vote standing 1807 against
to 748, for.

CHILD KILLED

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 26.—Burial
arrangements are to be made today
for the body of six-year-old Joseph Johnson, Jr., who died from injuries received when he was hit by an automobile driven by B. C. Natter, Obetz Junction. The accident occurred near Groveport, Thursday,
when the lad ran in front of Natter's
car.

FAIRFIELD MAN IS SERIOUSLY HURT AT CROSSING ACCIDENT

John Swadner, 37, Fairfield, is expected to recover from injuries received when the auto he was driving was struck by a traction freight at the Main St. crossing in Osborn Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Swadner was removed to Miami Valley Hospital at Dayton where an improvement was noted in his condition Friday.

He is suffering from bruises and cuts on the arms, legs and body, all of which are not likely to develop seriously, hospital attendants say.

Swadner's small coupe was hit in the rear by the traction just as it had almost cleared the crossing in safety. View of the tracks was obstructed, it is reported.

"I always have been a Pennsylvania Railroad man and always will be, with nothing but praise for this wonderful railroad," says William Daughters, veteran Cincinnati Division passenger conductor, former Xenian, who was placed on the Pennsy's pension roll of honor November 1, after having been in active service nearly forty-two years.

Mr. Daughters is sixty-five years old and was retired on account of physical disability. He was born in Franklin County, Ohio, May 11, 1861, and entered the Pennsylvania Railroad service when he was twenty-three years old. He was made a freight conductor in 1889 and was promoted to passenger conductor in 1895.

"My early boyhood was passed on a farm," recalls Mr. Daughters. "While working on this farm, situated on the Little Miami Railroad (now the main line of the Cincinnati Division) I would notice the trains passing. That is where the thought first came to me that I would like to be a railroad man.

"The first work I ever did for the Pennsylvania was putting in ties on the Roxans section, with Thomas Comfort as the section foreman," continued the veteran conductor. "I helped to build the old Grasshopper road that connected with the Cincinnati Division at Claysville, Pa.

"One of the many experiences I had while railroading that I shall never forget was when I was running in freight service between Xenia and Richmond. At West Sonora station we had an emergency operator who ran a shoe repair shop and telegraphed when necessary. As our train passed that point one night the shoemaker-operator noticed a car off the track in the middle of our train. He called Dodson Ohio, where we were stopped.

"We examined the train, but found nothing wrong. We took our engine, flagged back over the train and found that the car had been off the track for about three miles but had jumped back on the track at the road crossing east of the overhead bridge at Sonora Hollow.

"Another peculiar instance happened on train No. 21 of which I was conductor. A woman patron in one of the coaches informed me that her new hat had blown out of the window. I threw off a message at the next office asking the section men to look for it. I received a message at Richmond saying that the hat had been found and would be in St. Louis on her arrival there. This was possible, as train No. 31 carrying the hat passed No. 21. The lady was more than pleased, but wanted to know how the hat would arrive ahead of her.

Alleged personal injuries and damage to his automobile sustained in an auto accident on the Xenia Pike west of Zimmerman, are made the basis of a $500 damage suit filed in Common Pleas Court by Charles E. Geisler, R. R. 7, Xenia, against Oakley O. Warren, 725 E. Second St., Dayton.

Geisler sets forth his left wrist was cut by flying glass and he was otherwise hurt in asking $400 damage in restitution. Damage to his machine resulted in a repair bill of $100 is also alleged.

Defendant is charged with negligence in the following respects: driving at the rate of fifty miles per hour, trying to pass an auto in front without regard to approaching traffic and traveling on the wrong side of the pike. Plaintiff was operating his truck in an easterly direction while the defendant was going west, petition recites. Joseph W. Sharts is attorney for the plaintiff.

Fire from an unknown origin, caused considerable damage to the residence of Dr. A. C. Messenger, N. Galloway St., Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Flames were discovered shooting from the roof by a neighbor and Dr. and Mrs. Messenger, who had been in Springfield, were notified. The blaze burned a hole about ten feet square in the roof before extinguished by firemen. Prompt arrival of the fire department saved the house from more serious damage.

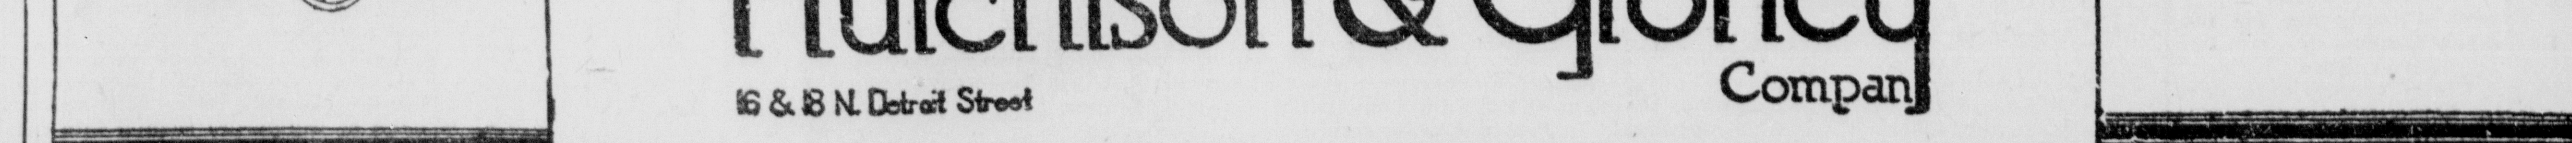

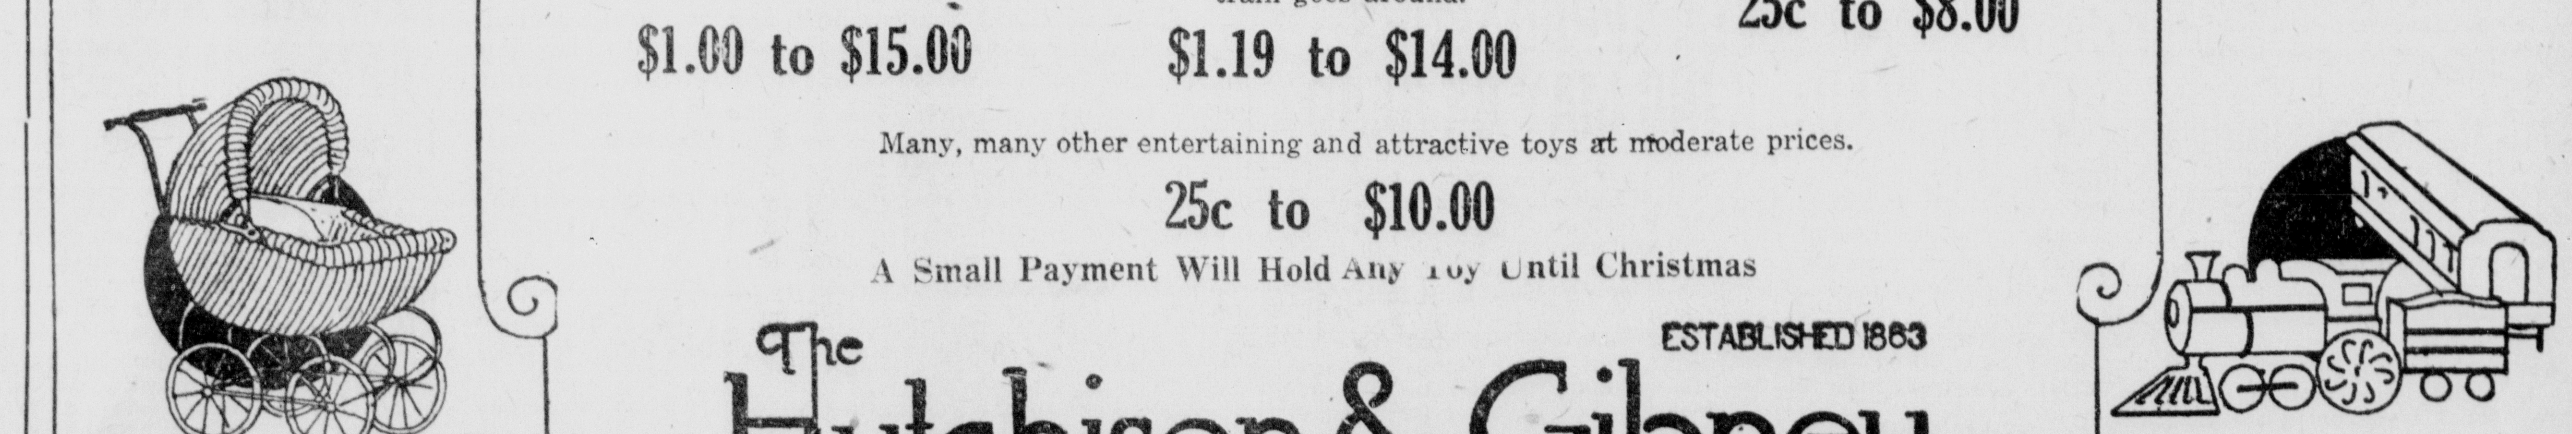

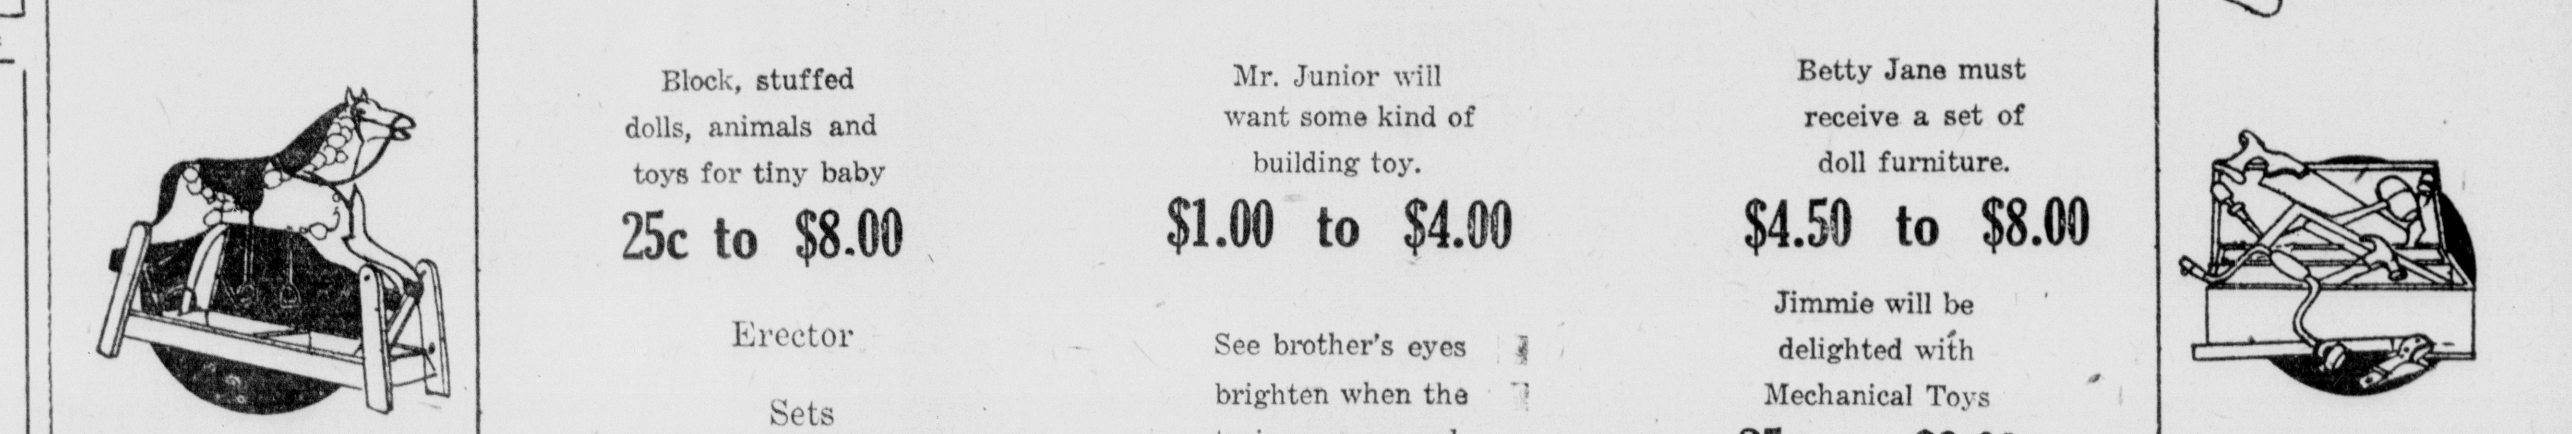

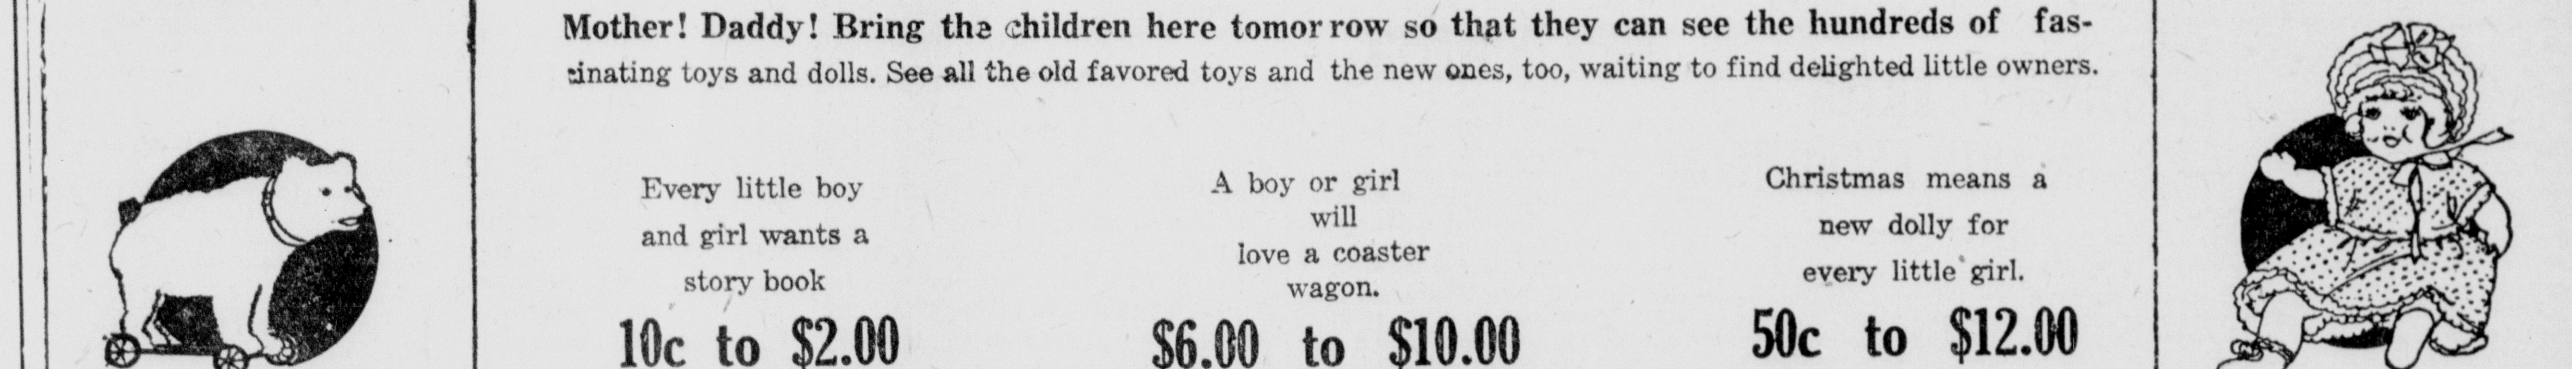

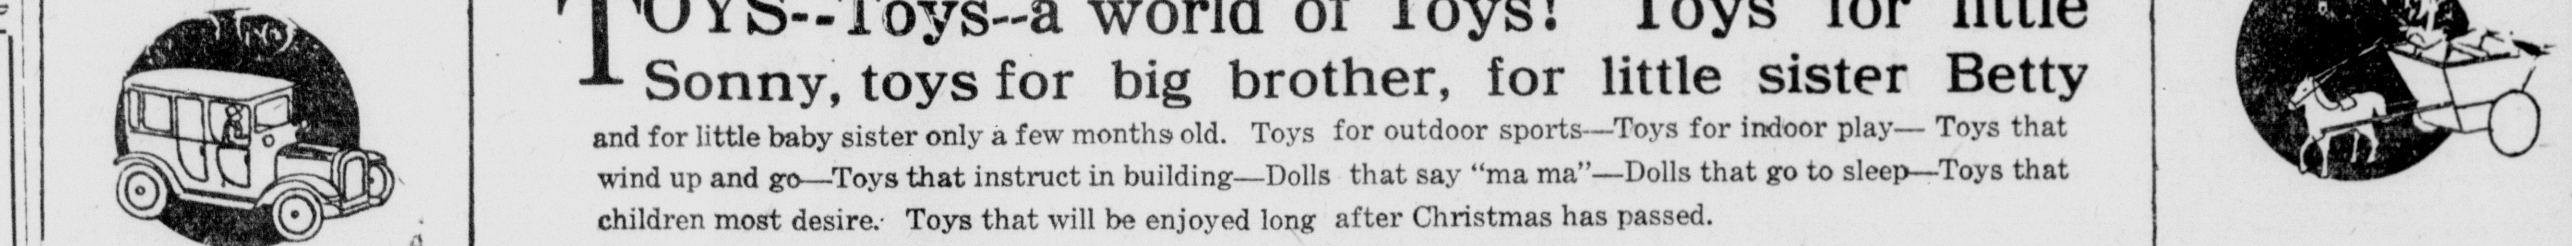

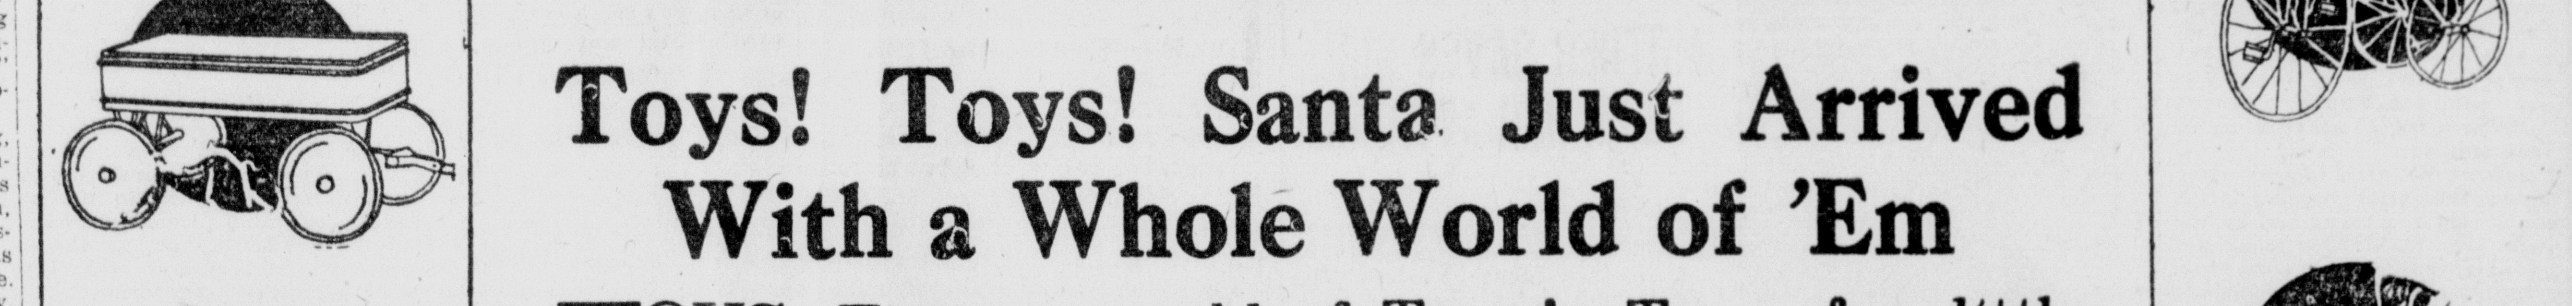

Cause of the blaze is a mystery, Dr. Messenger said, since there had been no fire in the furnace and no electric wiring near where the fire started.

VOL. I. FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1926. NO. 8

We often wonder if there are locks to fit all the keys that some men carry around with them.

J. W. Dice of the Fairground Road stocked up with some of those fresh Mids and bran this last week.

O. J. Whitlow traded some corn for Mids this week. A pretty good thing to do.

Jno. Bath and Chas. McElfresh made their heating units smile this week. Started feeding them Miller's Creek and Virginia coal.

J. O. St. John and Frank Wilson renewed their supplies of UNION GRAINS this week. Ask 'em what they think of it for dairy cows.

Here lies the body of Jim Lake, Tread softly, all who pass. He thought his foot was on the brake. But it was on the gas.

We don't know how you feel about it, but we're glad Thanksgiving is over! It takes our digestive capacity to the ut. most. The farmer took the green farm hand out to the field and started him to plowing. Two hours later the hand came to the house, completely exhausted. "How do you expect me to hold that plow, with two big horses tryin' to pull it away from me all the time?" he demanded.

Just received a large shipment of Dr. Hess' Panacea Tonic, Disinfectant, Remedies, etc.

If we published all the names of satisfied users of our coals we would have to buy the Gazette. We have three cars of coal on the way. Let us have your order now.

The smartest furs for sports use are the skins patterned in a definite design such as leopard, chipmunk, civet cat and the myriad stencilled gazelle pelts. With the exception of the black and white civet cat, the majority of these gaily patterned furs are in the tan, brown and tawny yellow shades—the most satisfactory colors for sports wear.

Sketched today is a straight-line coat of gazelle stencilled in a brown and tan design. Because of the sports nature of this wrap, the collar and cuffs are of the same fur as the rest of the coat. The lines, also, are straight and flareless to further accent the tailored effect.

The only note of decoration appears on the border which is trimmed with two rows of brown gros grain piping—a form of trimming quite in character with the masculine severity of the other details.

Almost as decorative as the spotted fur is the lining of tan kasha bordered in henna and white wool-embroidery.

With this youthful coat of stencilled gazelle is worn a small chapeau and a melon-shaped muff of the same fur.

TERRIBLE SIGHT—FOR THIRSTY

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 26.—

It was a very ghastly sight. The negro, stepping from a street car, calmly jerked a knife from somewhere on his person, and serenely proceeded to jab at his side and stomach several times.

Three policemen looked on in pop-eyed amazement. As the darkey's clothes became drenched, he still stood firm, jabbing the knife into his abdomen.

The policemen perceived he was getting somewhat thinner as the stuff continued to trickle to the pavement.

Roused into action the "law" captured him. He had merely been puncturing a rubber bag full of moonshine, and now he's held on charges of "possession."

MAKING MODERN MENUS

For the confirmed oyster eater there are various ways of serving this succulent food which are little known and have only to be known to be appreciated. The oyster is one of the foods which may give an infinite variety to the menu and is held in high esteem by the masculine portion of our best diners.

ROASTED OYSTERS
Wash and drain a pint of oysters and place them in a baking dish. Add, in the way of seasoning, one-fourth teaspoon of cayenne, a teaspoon of salt, pepper, and a teaspoon of chopped onion, lemon juice and bits of parsley. Lay thin slices of bacon, one-fourth pound in all, over the oysters, and sprinkle one-fourth cup of grated cheese over the bacon. Bake in a moderate oven.

OYSTER SANDWICHES
Chop one pint of oysters very fine and cook with one-fourth cup of melted butter, one-fourth cup of milk and two stiffly-beaten egg whites, four crackers crumbled into a fine dust, one-half teaspoon of salt and one-fourth teaspoon of pepper. Allow to cook slowly over a low fire and cool. The mixture can then be cut in thin slices and placed between thin slices of bread. Delicious to serve with tea at the afternoon party.

Since the recent overwhelming

CHEESE CARROTS
Mix one tablespoon of flour with half a cupful of mild American cheese, finely chopped or grated, one-half teaspoon of salt and three-fourths of a cup of milk. Put into a medium-sized casserole and mix well. Then stir in one cupful of cooked macaroni in small pieces and a cupful of cooked diced carrots. Put into a hot oven, covered, for twenty minutes, and serve piping hot.

CABBAGE PEPPERS

Just Wait A Couple Years!!

THIS year, of course, they are confined to just BABY FOODS but it's really surprising how soon they grow up and out eat the oldest member of the family! (Our line of BABY FOODS IS COMPLETE.)

For Every Mood!

That's ONE fine thing about a Victor Record. In THAT respect it has a Radio skunk! We just received the following Victor Records from Broadway: Kentucky Lullaby, My Pal Jerry, Mary Lou, Moon Light on Ganges, Baby Face.

They Never Anger
A Person!

We have never heard of a person getting peeved because some one gave them a Fountain Pen! Judging from this (after investigation), we would state that a Parker Fountain Pen must be darn NEAR a perfect Gift!

You MUST Use Judgment!

Everyone doesn't care for PINK STATIONERY! Yet SOME folks PREFER that sort! So in making a selection for that name on your list, be real careful about PICKING 'em. Fortunately for all concerned we carry a BIG supply in a WIDE variety with all sorts of prices. Don't forget this.

Prescriptions!

Steadily month after month we see our PRESCRIPTION FILE grow BIGGER! For this gesture of confidence on your part, we are truly grateful and very proud!

First Act Over!

It's very seldom that a merchant will allow his customers to pick their OWN slogan for HIS store. Generally about this time of year you see a whole slew of signs like—"DO YOUR SHOPPING NOW" and "SHOP HERE FIRST" or "TRY THE DRUG STORE FIRST." And ALL of these are rather good and quite useful but they never MEAN anything. Nobody pays any attention to them and you all just do as you please waiting until the WEEK BEFORE CHRISTMAS to really BUY things! Am I right?

TODAY we are going to start using the slogan which has been selected by 46 customers out of 60 actual vote! These 46 represent youth, middle age and elderly people about evenly divided. If the slogan they selected doesn't work successfully, it's not OUR fault but THEIRS! Here it is:

LAY IT AWAY!

This means that you can select your Christmas presents NOW and can pay a little down or ANY down and have them "laid away" until a few days before Christmas, at which time you can either come in and gettem or we can arrange to SEND them to you. And we think that's a mity fine stunt. For BOTH of us. Even SHORTY approved of it! DOG SAYRE.

Shorty Says:

As soon as I heard this new slogan I went right out to explain the idea to Roscoe, my pet turkey. I told Roscoe plainly that I wanted him to "lay away" until a couple of days before Christmas and gave him my reasons! He argued agin it for a time but when I explained that he had nothing else to do but laze around and get chesty, he agreed to do it, which proves that Roscoe is a real philosopher.

I Repeat A BIG FACT!

A Tuberculosis Germ can be BOILED—yet LIVE! It can be frozen in a cake of ice for four months—yet LIVE. Let you put that same germ in a drop of Cod Liver Oil and it DIES DEAD! Think what our Purest Cod Liver Oil will do to just ORDINARY Germs.

Police And Fountain News!

When you can't find that present at the price you want to pay. And the clerk suggests sweetly "lemme lay it away" And your insteps are busted and your head's in a maze And you wish you were over these Holi-days—Dash right in here and get measured for a Soda! It'll do you good!

Much Too Early!

It's entirely too early to outfit yourself with GANDY for Xmas! Wait awhile! We DO think, however, that it would be a smart trick to buy a LEETLE of several of our brands BEFORE Xmas so you'd find out which you like the best.

Many Very Costly!

However, that doesn't apply to A L L of our TOILETRIES. Things like Puffs, Compacts, Fancy Tales, Perfumes and Combinations make just mity acceptable gifts and its fine to reduce the names on that list.

PROGRESS IN FLYING

After a score of years in experimentation, aviation can count only about 5,000 planes in the air over the United States, exclusive of those in the army, navy and marines. Our automobiles number millions.

The annual increase in the demand for automobiles has been so great that progress in automobile engineering could hardly keep pace with it.

Such advance in numbers ahead of design and improvement would be deplorable in aviation. Permanent popularity of the airplane must depend on its careful engineering development. Factors of safety, reliability and achievement must be given painstaking attention to a considerably greater degree than was necessary in the case of the automobile.

Passenger cars came before trucks in automobile history. Commercial planes came before pleasure planes in aviation history.

"That's the difference in the progress of these vehicles of travel. If we got ahead of the engineers in one line, we're wisely following them in the other.

Houdini's death removes from the platform one of the most interesting characters of the past and present generations. Most people believed Houdini to be an oriental on account of his name, but that it is announced was assumed. He began life as a minister's son, who delighted in "skinning the cat" on the trapeze in the back yard of the parsonage. As he grew up the trapeze performances became a part of his everyday life and he performed with no mean success. This led to an interest in the magician's art and in that he ultimately became the most proficient in this country. He believed in entertaining the people by an exhibition of dexterity rather than of mysticism. Where others tried to make the people believe they were masters of magic, and were doing their stunts by the aid of uncanny spiritual forces, Houdini explained it was all done by natural means and the skill of the performers. He offered to duplicate any trick of any magician or spiritualist and so far as we have learned he was always able to do it.

Now his body is encased in a brass coffin, according to instructions left in his will. While in life Houdini was able to escape from any kind of box in which he might be enclosed and sealed by those in his audience, now at last he is to be laid away in a brass coffin from which he will make no attempt to escape until the resurrection day, when his escape from the coffin and the grave will be no more miraculous than that of any of the rest of us.

FIVE AGES OF BEAUTY

The Skin Over Forty

And now we come to the discussion of the skin that is over forty, the skin of mother whose boy or girl is probably just about to enter prep school or college—the skin of the conservative business man or the woman who is active in business or professional life.

The average woman at this age has probably lived through many trying moments. However, if she has watched the decades from twenty to thirty and thirty to forty with a careful vigilance, and has endeavored to conserve her strength, her nerves, and, in turn, her beauty, then she has retained much of her youthfulness.

The beauty regime of you women of forty or over should continue very much along the lines that you adopted during your thirties, but with increased effort. Of course, scrupulous cleansing is of basic importance, but your stimulating creams and muscle tightening preparations must be strong enough to really do something for you. It is not sufficient that you choose just a bland, pleasant scented cream, especially if your skin is inclined to sallowness, liver spots or blotch spots. Your patting and slapping treatments must also be firmer and more frequent. Many women over forty are troubled with a skin that is inclined to dryness, with perhaps a tendency to lines and wrinkles. This type of skin should receive abundant applications of a rich nourishing cream, that will help fill out the hollows and ward off wrinkles. Special attention should be given to the area around the eyes where crowfeet and puffiness make their appearance. Put in a generous portion of rich anti-wrinkle cream for crowfeet and allow it to remain on at least twenty minutes and overnight if possible. For puffiness gently pat in an astringent jelly until it becomes entirely absorbed in the skin.

At the age of forty or over, the tendency of the face is to droop, and this must be vigilantly guarded against. You must impress thoroughly upon your subconscious mind, the importance of counteracting downward lines. Upward lines should be cultivated, so in the applications of your creams and lotions be sure to use upward motions. During your treatments stop now and then and press the face firmly with an upward bracing motion. Be faithful with the use of your rejuvenating stimulants for they whip the blood to the surface and stimulate the circulation so that it makes the tissue of starved skins responsive to rich feeding creams. Complete relaxation and the wearing of sensible shoes, especially those with rubber heels, is of especial importance to you women of forty or over. Twenty minutes or a half hour's rest and quiet each day will do much to help you retain the clearness and freshness of your skin, the brightness of your eyes and the evenness of your disposition.

Another article on the "Five Ages of Beauty" will follow.

by Dr. A. F. Currier

A metropolitan paper tells a good story of a man in Chicago who after working sixteen to eighteen hours a day in a business which he was developing, broke down in mind and body, felt that he could not make his family happy, went to the river and pulled off his coat with the intention of jumping in and drowning himself. His resolution seems to have given out however, and he started for home. He did not reach home but apparently took a train which landed him at Shreveport, La., where he obtained a position which he held for a while and then left for Dallas, Tex. There he sold automobiles and subsequently became a street contractor, conducting a business successfully and making some money. All this time he seems to have been entirely oblivious of his home and family although competent during a period of three years to conduct business and attend to the ordinary duties of everyday life.

It is quite interesting to learn that after he left home his son left school and gave up his entire time to efforts to trace and locate his father and did not succeed in finding him until the end of the three-year period. When the son found his man's normal individuality returned to him, whether suddenly or gradually is not stated, and he is reported to have said that he would be glad to go back to Chicago and take up his business there where he had left it off. The only feature lacking in this romantic tale is the woman element and it is quite creditable, not to say unusual that this feature should be left out.

This case, if recorded truthfully, and as to this I have some doubt, is not merely a case of amnesia or loss of memory but of loss of individuality as well.

Such cases, in so far as they are genuine, do show evidence of mental disease but there is always an amount of embellishment when they get into the newspapers, which arouses skepticism in the minds of the conservative.

If there had not been so much method in his madness it would have been more creditable. It is a little hard to understand how

this man could have retained enough shrewdness to transact business and do it successfully, meet all kinds of people and yet never arouse a suspicion in his own mind or in the minds of those with whom he was dealing that he was a point or two off his base.

That even the violently insane may sometimes show the usual and expected mental reactions was illustrated in the case of an esteemed medical friend of mine who tried to kill the owner of the institution where he was detained. He was then locked in a room in the third story of the building. From this he escaped at night, dropping from the window to the piazza below, breaking a rib or two and bruising himself badly. From the piazza he dropped to the ground and made his way to a nearby swiftly flowing river. Into this he plunged to drown himself but the water was too cold, he said he hadn't the courage to finish the job. He then went straight to the house, quiet and well behaved again, while his keepers were searching for him in every direction with lanterns and torches. And there was no amnesia about this case.

E. P.—Am a nervous wreck, broken down physically and mentally. I have trouble in my stomach and in my pelvic organs, also palpitations of the heart and awful nervous spells. Answer—I should think from your letter you were overworked and worried and that rest and change of scene for a few weeks would do you more good than any amount of medicine. Do try and arrange your household affairs so that you can get away for at least a month.

Ask Dr. Currier that medical question that has been puzzling you. Confine your letter to fifty words and send stamped, addressed envelope for reply. He cannot, of course, make individual diagnoses, and he reserves the right to decide as to the propriety of queries.

RICHER STUDENTS AFFECTING MORALS

DELAWARE, O., Nov. 2.—The richer class of college students who are adapted to a "faster" type of living has caused the apparent decline of the moral standards of college students, according to Dr. E. L. Rice, professor of zoology of Ohio Wesleyan University.

Dr. Rice believes, however, that the whole situation has been greatly exaggerated.

"College students are bad only because they want to keep up with the times. With the increasing cost of institutions of learning, necessitated by greater upkeep expenditures, there is a tendency to dilute our American colleges with the wealthier class of students who are used to so-called "faster" living, says Dr. Rice. "Many of this type do questionable things only because it is the fad."

Dr. Rice is one of the authorities who testified at the Scopes trial in Dayton, Tenn.

I attended a vaudeville show recently in which one performer sits blindfolded by a piano on the stage while the other member of the team goes into the audience and asks people, one at a time, to whisper the name of a favorite tune or song. Then he mysteriously moves his hands as if mesmerizing the pianist who immediately begins to play the song asked for.

During the intermission, a group of us discussed how the clever feat was probably accomplished. We assumed that the man's motions with his hands are silent signals in code to somebody behind the scenes who then communicates such signal to the pianist.

"But," asked one of our group, "how could they memorize code signals for all the songs people might mention? Suppose that there are 1,000 people in the audience and no two would have in mind the same favorite song?"

Of course the answer is that it would be impossible to find 1,000 people or even 100 people each with a favorite song different from all the rest. There would be many duplications. "Thousands of many duplications," but the ones which sunk deepest into your own memory had a quality which made them remembered by other people. Such songs are not numerous. The same is true of books. Look at the list of new books published every week and then consider how few, even of the best sellers, will make any lasting impression. When several hundred college students are asked for their favorite books, surprisingly few different titles are mentioned.

We even use fewer different words in conversation or writing than we think. A careful tabulation of several thousands letters, including both business and love letters, showed that a list of 2,000 words would cover nine-tenths of the vocabulary of an average person.

We might be surprised then at how few books or songs we know by name, in spite of the thousands that we have to choose from. And perhaps still more surprising is the fact that those we do know are mostly the same ones that the neighbors do. Indeed, this statement might even be broadened to say that most of our knowledge on any subject whatever is a scant bit that we share with nearly everybody.

Little Old New York

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1926
NEW YORK Nov. 26.—A New York Columnist announced that he "prefers" Ring Lardner to Rudyard Kipling.

It's that sort of stuff that keeps the smile on the face of The Times of Detroit and holds the Woolworth heirs to the Trail of the Lonesome Dime.

Ring Lardner and Kipling. Bud Fisher and Michael Angelo. Irving Berlin and Beethoven. Flet mignon and hot dawgs. O, tempora! O, morosa!

A traveling outlooker reports that oyster stew cost but thirty-five cents in Pittsburgh, against sixty cents in New York. "Yet," he observes, "the smoky city is nearly 500 miles from the bivalve region, which lies at New York's front door."

He overlooks the fact, of course, that the price of sixty cents in New York includes pearls.

Priced at $2.50, New York shoe merchants are advertising the latest thing in footwear, called "Captain Kidd" boots.

The trade name, I suppose, being prompted by ancestry.

Greenwich Village, with its attic studios, cellar restaurants and stable cabarets—where wide and wondrous ties were worn to hide a threadbare shirt, and inspiration soared and sang "mid Chinese gods and dirt"—is slipping into the realm of mournful tradition to the accompaniment of the wrecker's hammer and the staccato of the riveter.

Fourteen-story apartment houses with charlotte russe trimmings and liveried attendants are supplanting the rookeries of Bohemia. The funny little book shops are disappearing along with the creaking, painted signs featuring black cats and variegated parrots.

The long-haired lads and short-haired lassies have packed their "bourgeoisie."

Nietzsche, Schopenhauer, their rhyming dictionaries, copies of Havelock, Ellis, Freud, dog-eared back numbers of The Mercury and plaster busts of the heroes of the Radical Renaissance, and have trekked across the river of Brooklyn Heights, down to Staten Island, up to the Bronx and back home to Texas and Indiana.

Harry Kamp, who some time ago deserted the village because it had degenerated into a place where "butchers are mistaken for poets and poets for butchers," has returned.

Harry tried life on the top floor of a tenement house on the East Side. The "polyglot boarding house" stuff didn't make much of a bit with the wandering rhymster. He found it too dirty.

The villagers who have decided to remain in their old haunts are of the Lesser Breed who are not, and never were motivated by the real spirit of Bohemia.

When "dreams" don't pay, out the window with them and substitute something that can be translated into portierhouse steak, cigarettes and bootleg hooch.

Hence the trick book stalls and bizarre antique shops that today dot the neighborhood, spilling over into the fringe.

One proprietor of a Den of Dilletantes down there attires himself in cow puncher's ciz. Another rigs himself out in the make-up of a comic opera pirate. And one "Bohemian" who used to write hand-drawn verses for the newspapers gets hold of a house, paints the front, a la Peppe ("the real estate king of the village") and now goes to Europe every summer on the profits of subtlety to the "bourgeoisie."

'Me Too' Cries Alumni Team As It Loses To Central

Former Blue And White Play In Opposition To No Avail

CENTRAL High gridders and the Alumni's make - shift eleven, having been placed in a position where it was practically compulsory for one team to win, the former did this little trick impressively 14 to 0 in the revival of their annual Thanksgiving Day tilt Thursday morning at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

Both teams were reluctant to do it and it was not until the third quarter that Vic Kolb's lighter but better balanced team scored its first touchdown and acquired what may be designated as a substantial lead.

Alumni, composed of many famous high school stars of the past four years, presented a creditable lineup and besides holding its own in the first half came dangerously near to scoring on one occasion.

Central started off impressively after receiving the kickoff, reeling off two straight first downs on line plays and a nineteen-yard pass to Morton, but was ultimately forced to kick. Frequent exchanges of kicks and a thirteen-yard dash around end by Bob Finlay, 1925 star, featured the remainder of the period with the graduates playing well.

In the second period Alumni took the ball in midfield and began its most concerted drive for a score, making three first downs on line bucks by Don Fuller and Zell and a twelve-yard pass to Finlay, and marching almost half the length of the field before the threatening drive was halted on the twelve-yard line. Fuller despairing for a touchdown, dropped back to the twenty for a drop-kick which was wide by inches.

In the third period Central came into its own with its main offensive weapon, passes. Taking the ball in midfield, a pass to Morton was good for eight. Smith swung down and a ten-yard loss resulting from a bad pass from center was more than atoned for when Smith heaved another long one to Gibney for a twenty-five yard gain. On the fourth down and an open formation play, the Alumni was caught napping and Captain Max Marshall stood in the end zone and caught a long pass from Smith for the first score. Smith added the goal.

In the final quarter Central was constantly bidding for a touchdown. A fifteen-yard pass to Marshall and a thirteen-yard run by Doak availed little as Alumni regained possession of the ball on downs on its twenty-five. As the period drew to a close, the Alumni line severed relations with the backfield. Randall fumbled and the disowned ball rolled to the thirty-one where a Central player smothered it.

Morton took a pass on his finger tips and squirmed to the fifteen-yard line for a gain of sixteen yards. He then penetrated tackle for eight and repeated for six and the concluding touchdown, after which Smith accurately kicked goal.

The contest served as a fitting final game of the season and kept intact Central's record of an uncrossed goal line at home this year. With more practice and a set of signals the Alumni would probably have furnished stiffer opposition due to presence on the team of such familiar stars of former years as Zell, Fuller, Chitty, Finlay, Holton, Woolary, Cowan, Spahr, McCoy, Don Currie, Horner, Donovan, Bottorff, Parrett and others. However the grads have no particular reason to feel discouraged for they might have lost to a worse team. Summaries:

Funeral services for William Badgley will be held at his home in Springfield, Sunday at 1 o'clock with interment in Jamestown Cemetery. The funeral was to have been held Saturday afternoon, but due to relatives being unable to arrive then, services were postponed until Sunday.

WILBERFORCE LOWERS COLORS OF W. VA. INSTITUTE THURSDAY

Wilberforce University lowered the curtain on the 1926 football season by nosing out a 3 to 2 victory over its traditional rival, West Virginia Collegiate Institute, in the annual inter-sectional Turkey Day classic before a record crowd of 6,000 fans Thursday at Neil Park, Columbus.

Followers of the team were in high spirits Thursday for although Wilberforce has often come close to victory, West Virginia has long been a thorn in the side of its national championship aspirations.

Quarterback Green's toe did not fail him at the critical moment in the first quarter when the playing field was dry, and he booted a field goal from the thirty-five yard mark. Later in the game Wilberforce made a safety and kept its goal line protected.

The victory gave Wilberforce undisputed claim to second place among the "Big Four" colleges and to runnerup position to Howard University of Washington D. C., in the matter of national negro college honors.

Howard won the Eastern Negro College football championship and the mythical national title Thursday by overwhelming Lincoln University of Philadelphia, Pa., 32 to 0, and kept its perfect record for the season intact.

Following the Wilberforce game, the annual Thanksgiving prom was held under the auspices of Alla Baba Temple No. 55, A. E. A. O. N. M. S. Thursday night at Memorial Hall, in Columbus.

Howard won the Eastern Negro College football championship and the mythical national title Thursday by overwhelming Lincoln University of Philadelphia, Pa., 32 to 0, and kept its perfect record for the season intact.

Authorities had feared for a time that Herron had jumped his $800 appearance bond and disappeared but he was located at the home of his parents in Kentucky by his bondsman and returned to Greene County.

Herron told the court he went to Kentucky for a visit with his mother and was unaware he was under indictment by the grand jury.

He was refused bond and remanded to the County Jail pending the outcome of his case.

GANGSTERS HURT BUT KEEP SILENCE

HAMILTON, Ohio, Nov. 26.—Although wounded during what police declared was a "small scale" gang war, Adolph Schramm, 30, and John Irwin, today refused to sign warrants or give any information concerning the men who attacked them yesterday.

Schramm was reported, was wounded when four men fired from an automobile through a restaurant window at him.

Irwin, said to be one of Schramm's friends, was slashed about the face in another row.

A young man can practice football until dark every evening and still come to his classes the following day with his lessons prepared. This is the conclusion reached by Principal Spencer Shank, of Central High School, who says the boys' school work apparently does not suffer.

The principal has studied the effects of outside activities on the grades of high school students. Central's 1926 football squad is of equal ability on the gridiron and in the classroom. The squad is made up of exceptional students who are grid stars of the first magnitude and still rank well in school work.

Research by school officials shows that not a member of the squad so far this season has been declared ineligible to play a scheduled game because of backwardness or failure to keep up in studies which is considered a unique record.

The high school student has a powerful incentive toward study in the fact that he is prohibited from inter-scholastic competition if his grades fall below a certain point.

A more far-reaching result was recently obtained by the Dean of Men at an Eastern university, who made an investigation into outside activities of students.

"A man," said the Dean, "can play football and get good grades, declared ineligible to play a scheduled game because of backwardness or failure to keep up in studies which is considered a unique record.

Stubborn Cough Ends In Fifteen Minutes
Or Money Refunded
Science announces a new prescription for those stubborn coughs which would otherwise hang on for weeks. Acts on a new principle which relieves the inflammation and tickling almost like magic. Relief comes in fifteen minutes—one swallow is all that's needed. If it fails, get your money back. Equally good for sore throat for which purpose it has been found far superior to gargles. No chloroform or harmful drugs. Safe for children and adults. It is called Thoxine and is sold on a money-back guarantee, 25c., 60c., and $1.00 sizes. All druggists. —Adv.

Line bucking mixes with studies. But dancing doesn't or he can edit the college paper and get good grades, or he can have a steady girl and go to all the dances, or be president of the Y. M. C. A. but if he tries to mix more than one of these things with his studies, then look out.

Investigations by many colleges show that students prominent in the social life of the institution consistently fall below the scholastic mark set by their less active classmates. As dancing is the main social activity of the youth of today it seems reasonable to assume that football and dancing don't mix. Since football is the most popular and widespread scholastic sport, it seems just as reasonable to assume that football and studying do mix, as the Xenia teams record this year bears witness.

In other words it's the brainy backfield man against the stupid sheik.

- COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 26.—
Wholesale grocery sales fell off
appreciably in Ohio in October, the
bureau of business research, Ohio
State University, reports in its monthly bulletin. The average price declined also. Average
prices for the trade, in fact, were
the lowest in months, based on index numbers compiled from the
monthly wholesale grocery sales
for October were ninety-one and
four-tenths per cent of sales for
the corresponding month a year
ago. Outstandings last month
were only ninety-five and seven-
tenths per cent of those for October 1925. Average prices a
month ago were only ninety-five
and four-tenths of those for October a year ago.

The curve for dollar sales
dropped four and nine-tenths
points during October from the
high point of the year established
in September. This decline was
partially accounted for, however,
by the fact that the price index
for the month also fell off three
and one-tenth points. The price
index, incidentally, the bureau reports, "now stands at a lower level than at any time since January 1923."

All three districts into which
the state is divided for the survey reflect the decrease in sales,
but the northeastern section shows
the smallest percentage of loss
from September.

Monthly sales in northeastern Ohio were only eighty-three and
six tenths per cent, however, of
those for October 1925, while those
of southeastern Ohio were ninety-
five and eight-tenths per cent, and
those of western Ohio ninety-nine
and seven-tenths per cent.

Physical volume of sales, how-
110.0.

ther, he's even more ex- children to be born with manners and teeth. If they ever get the one or the other you have to supply them with the false variety. But there's no reason why a child shouldn't be taught certain things, even kiddie-kar traffic should have some regulations. A great many people feel that they should love children anyway, because they were one: that way themselves and got away with it. But if parents make a poor investment, how do they figure that their children owe them, anything later on? There is a great deal of difference between a child who behaves like a little gentleman and the one who forces his host to over- do it!

OHIO VOTERS FAVOR HEAVY BOND ISSUES FOR IMPROVEMENTS

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 26.—Bond issues totaling not less than $8,642,000 for water, sewerage and sewage disposal improvements were approved by voters in municipalities in all parts of the state at the November 2nd election, according to reports to the State Department of Health here. In contrast to this, the bond issues defeated in the election totaled only a little more than $1,000,000 including two projects of waterworks improvement and two for sewer construction.

Toledo approved a bond issue for $2,000,000 for intercepting sewers and one for $2,500,000 for sewage disposal work. Cleveland voted $2,000,000 of bonds to finance street paving and sewer construction and $450,000, voted by Dayton, will be devoted to the same purpose.

Elyria voted an issue of $900,000 for construction of a sewage treatment plant and the necessary appurtenances. A $700,000 bond issue, voted by the village of Hubbard, will be used for a trunk sewer and a sewage treatment plant.

Five villages approved bond issues for new waterworks systems. They were: Green Springs, $50,000; Crooksville, $96,000; Trenton, $40,000; Richmond Heights, $130,000; and Sallenville, the exact amount of which has not been determined.

Three municipalities voted to finance improvements to existing water supplies as follows: Eaton, $37,000; Barberton, $180,000; Perrysburg, $20,000; St. Paris, with an approved bond issue of $14,000; New Boston, with $70,000 and Amherst—with $75,000—can now proceed with improvements to existing sewerage systems and sewage treatment works. Amherst will install a complete sewage treatment plant. The village of Attica voted a two-mill levy to finance improvements to the existing water supply.

St. Georgetown, a bond issue of $60,000 was defeated by only eight votes. A similar issue at Yellow Springs was beaten by only eleven. Canton voted down an issue of $75,000 for storm and sanitary trunk sewers and a smaller issue for storm sewers was defeated at Hamilton.

RELATIVE DIES

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Wilkin, W. Market St., left Friday morning by motor for Bluffton, Ind., upon receiving word of the death of Mr. Wilkin's brother, S. S. Wilkin, 53, formerly a resident of Xenia, who passed away Thursday following an operation for appendicitis.

He lived in Xenia twenty-five years ago and since moving to Bluffton has been connected with a piano company.

The Theatre

In a recent interview, Noel Coward, said that he had decided to import players from London for his forthcoming productions, in New York of "The Queen Was In Her Parlor" and "Fallen Angels." The reason given was that he had found it too difficult to find Broadway players that could match the excellent English casts in his plays.

Coward plans to bring over Madge Titherage, Herbert Marshall, Francis Lister and other members now playing in "The Queen Was In Her Parlor" in London and will postpone his Broadway production until the play has ended its run in the British capital. "Fallen Angels" presented abroad years ago, will probably be offered here first.

Dolly Sisters were awarded 550,000 francs (approximately $18,200) last week in Paris Courts, as recompense for their wounded feelings when the Moulin Rouge Theatre failed to keep its promise that they would be the radiant stars of a show in 1924 and later giving Mlle Mistinguette, French dancer, more money and equal publicity. The Dollys quit the show when Mistinguette was shown favoritism.

Ernest Truex has accepted the Frank Craven role in "The First Year" about to be staged in London. He has postponed his intended appearance in "Sure Fire" the Ralph Murphy comedy now running in New York.

Cecile Sorel, who arrived this week with the Comedie Francaise troupe for a New York engagement at the Cosmopolitan Theater, will occupy the "Royal Suite" at the Hotel Ambassador during her stay. This is the suite redecored for Queen Marie last month.

Eva Tanguay, Cincinnati actress, is negotiating for a concert tour of the Raquel Meller and Ruth Draper type to play legitimate houses, halls, auditoriums and the like. In the meantime she is booked for picture houses, and independent vaudeville and may be forced to defer some of these owing to illness.

HONEY LOU

CHAPTER XXIII.

There was hash for supper that night in the little flat.

It was not common every day hash, but a glorified dish from an old southern cook book.

Mrs. Huntley made it with white rice, and the Sunday dinner, with green peppers, potato and cream, all baked to a golden brown in a buttered baking dish.

Made thus, it was a dish fit to set before a king, and Honey Lou loved it ordinarily.

But tonight when she walked into the little hallway of the flat, and the rich odor of it swept up to her nostrils, she made a face like "Grumpy's" when he tasted the spinach and lettuce.

At supper, she could not eat. The little white-clothed table, with its vase of asters, its glass dish of red currant jelly, its bright silver and shining plates and cups, was a gleam in the fading glow of the sunset.

There are women who keep house, as housekeepers make an art of their housekeeping. It meant more to her than clean beds, mended clothes and three well-cooked meals a day.

No matter how simple the food on the little round table might be, the silver shining vase filled with a few fresh flowers.

Tonight everything looked more appetizing than usual. But when Honey Lou tried to eat, the food choked her.

"Dear, I'm just not hungry," she told her mother, moving uneasily in her chair under the tender anxious eyes. "Mr. Wallace made me so nervous today. He was as cross as a bear with a sore head. And his room smelled of liniment, too. I reckon it just took away my appetite."

She sighed. "I told Donegal I'd go out dancing with him tonight, and I wish I could think of some way to get out of it, without hurting his feelings." She was sorry now that she had invited herself to spend the evening with him.

After all, what would she get out of it? She rolled up her napkin, slipped it into the silver ring that Aunt Lucy had given her for Christmas long ago, and walked out of the dining room.

As she went, she heard Margaret say quietly to her mother: "The poor child's tired out. That's all that's wrong with her. Remember she hasn't had a vacation all summer."

But Honey Lou was not tired in that way. Her slim lovely little body was fairly vibrant with life and blooming with young health.

But she had reached the time that every woman reaches sooner or later. She was tired—tiredly tired—of dashing around from one pleasure to the next, with one man or another.

It was her time to fall in love with the One Man, who should mean everything to her. To settle down with him to the solemn and beautiful business of being married—to living with him, belonging to him.

She had met that One Man, and she had fallen in love with him. And so it was that she looked forward to an evening with Tim Donegal with utter weariness.

"I hate to go out tonight," she said to herself, taking her new fall dress out of the clothes closet. "I don't know why I wanted to go, in the first place."

She put it on, and studied herself in the way dim mirror of her dresser.

She liked herself in it, she decided. The old-gold satin rippled over her figure, bringing out the lovely girl-slimness of breast and waist and hips.

The color of the satin was almost the color of Honey Lou's shining hair, and of her amber eyes with gold flecks in them. Even the whiteness of her skin had gold mixed in it that turned it to cream.

Against that velvety whiteness, Honey Lou's mouth was like a rose petal fallen on ivory. A mouth that needed none of the paint that she used on it so extravagantly.

She rouged it now, as she stood, grave-eyed, before the toilet glass. Then she "borrowed" a yellow velvet rosette from the drawer where Margaret kept her gloves and collars and handkerchiefs.

It was just what she needed to pin on her shoulder for a touch of color, and Margaret would never use it anyway, most likely. Margaret was not given to "fussy" dressing.

She only raised her eyebrows and laughed when Honey Lou walked out into the sitting room, with it pinned on her satin shoulder.

"Pretty swank tonight, aren't you?" she asked, looking up from the pair of stockings she was darning under the yellow lamp. "Much too pretty for Donegal. I don't like him. He looks wild."

"Am I pretty enough for Jack Wallace?" asked Honey Lou with her quick dazzling smile.

Margaret nodded. "But I thought you said you were going out with that Donegal man." Mrs. Huntley said, glancing up sharply.

"And so I am! But I'm going to see Jack Wallace, too!" Honey Lou dropped a kiss on the soft coil of hair that crowned her mother's head. "We're going to a restaurant to dance and he's going, too, with a crowd."

She made up her mind in a flash that she would go there with Donegal after all. There was no use wearing this lovely new dress unless Jack Wallace saw her in it. None at all.

She met Donegal downstairs in the sapphire darkness of the September night. And so it was not until they were in the restaurant that she saw that he had been drinking.

His eyes were bloodshot, his black hair rumpled, and there was a loose-lipped smile on his weak good-looking face as he followed Honey Lou unsteadily through the maze of little tables.

Their own place was in the farthest corner of the room with its crowd, its colored lanterns aglow above a haze of blue cigarette smoke, its red-plush divans against the wall, its noise and its clatter.

From the big round table where Jack Wallace sat with his "crowd" of Honey Lou came toward him—pass him—without so much as a glance.

His eyes followed her, as she swayed along like a little flower blowing on its stalk. She always made him think, somehow, of a flower. The freshness—the fragrance—and the frailty of her.

For him, the charm of Honey Lou had lain in her sweetness, her decency, her almost child-like innocence, rather than in her beauty. There were many, many pretty girls these days, when so much beauty depended on powder, cold cream, paint and curling irons.

The blow she had given him the night he had taken her joy-riding and kissed her had meant more to him than any other woman's kiss—even while his cheek still smarted with it.

He had believed her at first when she told him that she never had tasted liquor.

He had been touched by it. For no matter how short women may cut their hair and their skirts—no matter how much they may smoke or drink or paint themselves—a man's ideal of a woman somehow remains the same. The ideal of a woman's sweetness that is like the sweetness of an old-fashioned high-walled garden.

By the time Honey Lou and Donegal were seated, Jack had looked away from them.

When she finally found him with her eyes, he was helping Suzanne Clemens to butter. Suzanne, with her forty-year-old eyes, and her little baby face with a plume of cigarette smoke curling out from the round red mouth! On the other side of him sat Angela, all in filmy white, looking more like an angel than ever.

"There's 'old gang over in the other corner," Donegal muttered when he and Honey Lou had finished their soup. "Let's call 'em over here!"

He would have done it, too, but just then the orchestra began to play his favorite "Valencia."

"Let's dance," he said to Honey Lou.

They danced. Donegal had once said that no matter how much he drank he could always do two things—drive his car and dance.

Honey Lou saw now that what he said was true, so far as the dancing went. Not by a single misstep or stagger did he betray himself. He kept perfect time to the sensuous, stirring music.

But his eyes were almost closed, and once he brushed her cheek with his tiny pointed mustache.

"Lip tickle," he murmured softly to her, holding her so close to him that she could hardly dance.

"Don't, Tim!" she said sharply, her lips close to his ear. "People are looking at us!"

He laughed. "Do you care? They're all cabbage heads," he told her. "That's all people are. Just cabbage heads. You and me—we're different. We're sombodies. We can dance. Lordy, woman, how you can dance!" He gave her a sudden hard squeeze that all but sent them flat on their faces.

"Tim, behave yourself!" Honey Lou had gone very white, under the golden radiance of the lanterns above their heads. "Tim, please let's stop dancing! Tim, you've been drinking! You shouldn't have brought me here tonight."

She saw now that he was very drunk, indeed. He could hardly walk when the music stopped and they made their way to their own table in the corner.

Instead of taking the chair he had left, he dropped heavily down into one next to hers. His hot damp hand found hers under the table-top.

"Something for me. Do me a favor," he said thickly. "Ri' now before anybody sees us. Give me a kiss—just a little quick one—I'm crazy about you, Honey Lou."

Honey Lou shoved him away from her, and took a chair across from him with the table between them.

"Going to play tag?" Tim asked her. He slid over next to her, once more, and his face sobered.

A look that she hated came into it. It made her remember the day when Joe Meadows had stopped her on the stairs behind the shipping room at the Wallace Mills.

She looked wildly around the room, wondering if she could get up and leave the place without having Donegal make a scene.

Then across the smoke-filled room, she saw that Jack Wallace was watching them. Beside him, Suzanne Clemens was rolling her big eyes at him flirtatiously, but he did not see her.

For an instant he seemed to hesitate. Then he got up and came toward Honey Lou through the maze of little tables with a careless stride. He was smiling a little, and his head was up.

"What's the matter, Honey Lou?" he asked quietly, and sat down with them.

"I think—Tim's under the weather, a little," the girl faltered. Then her eyes widened with almost frantic appeal.

"Can't you get me out of here?" she asked, throwing her hands out in a helpless desperate sort of way. "He's been drinking. I can't stay with him."

Donegal picked up his glass of water and it slipped out of his fingers and fell to the floor with a crash.

"Butter-fingers!" he scolded himself. "Now come on, Honey Lou, be sociable. You can't get away with that touch-me-not stuff any longer with me. See?" He shook his finger at her. Then he laid one hand on her arm and pulled her toward him.

"Get out of here, Jack," he said, looking at the wall above Jack's head. "Honey Lou and I don't want any third party here. We're all 'ri', by ourselves." He hiccupped.

Jack leaned over and looked him square in the eye.

"Listen to me, you picnic egg!" he said very quietly. "You let Miss Huntley alone or I'm going to throw you out on your head. Do you hear me?"

Donegal shook his head. "I'm as dead as a post, honey," he answered, "when you're talking."

He stopped, and gazed unsteadily across the room. At the top of the three velvet-covered steps that lead down into the room stood two men in plain dark clothes.

It seemed to Honey Lou that they were looking straight at Donegal and herself.

"Dry officers!" said Donegal quickly. A sharp look crossed his face, and he sprang up from the table.

The sight of the two men seemed to have sobered him up like a cup of ice water dashed in his face. In another minute he had vanished through the glass-paneled door that led into the kitchens of the Magic Lantern. Behind him on the table he left a pint bottle of whiskey.

Above the sudden glare of the saxophones, Honey Lou heard Jack's voice: "Let's get out of here—come on—quick!"

She had a glimpse of great copper kettles of steaming soup, of cooks in white caps and jackets, of shelves filled with cups and plates and bowls—and then she and Jack Wallace were out under the stars, in the cluttered backyard behind the restaurant.

They squeezed through an opening in a broken fence, hurried through another yard, and found themselves on a narrow side street. Across the road from them stood a long black-and-nickle car.
